Zoning Board Doubts Need for Proposed Housing.

"The basic question is 'Do we want it, or not?'" stated Lefferts Loetscher Tuesday night as the third public hearing on public housing ground through its allotted three-hour session before the Township Zoning Board.

Another meeting will be held Tuesday, September 26, at 8 a.m., this time in Township Hall instead of in Community Park School. The Housing Authority of the Borough, acting as agent for Township Committee, wants to build 100 units of public housing—50 for families and 50 for the elderly—on 14.5 acres of wooded land bounded by Mt. Lucas, Ewing and State Road.

The Authority needs a use variance so its developer, Benedict Yedlin, can build multi-family units in the zone.

The Authority's witnesses finished their testimony at the last meeting. Zoning Board chairman Everett Garretson allowed Arnold Dumey, 641 Mt. Lucas Road, to cross-examine witnesses as representative of 46 residents of the area who oppose the project. The Zoning Board's attorney has ruled that only lawyers may cross-examine Authority witnesses, and Mr. Dumey was allowed to proceed, although he conceded that he had no license to practice law in New Jersey, only in New York State. John Grahma, formerly representing several residents, is now out of the case, the board's attorney, Ivan Bash, announced.

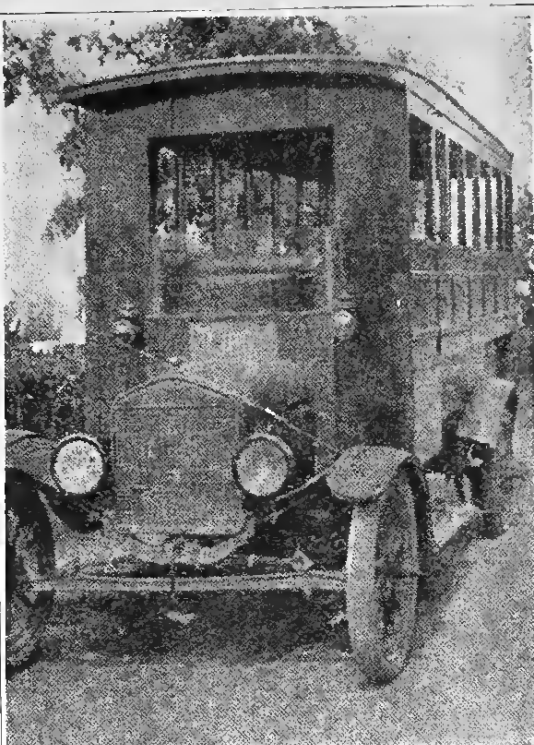

Protest Upheld. When Mr. Dumey characterized the public-housing proposal as "not a plan concerned with helping low-income families, but a cheap and shabby proposal," the Authority's attorney, Thomas Jamieson Jr., protested, and Mr. Garretson asked Mr. Dumey to drop that line, and concentrate on questioning witnesses.

Actually, zoning board members themselves, chiefly Mr. Garretson and Alan Jeydel, did most of the evening's questioning. Two topics concerned the board chiefly—is there another possible site besides this one? How much money will the Township lose in taxes? Mr. Garretson also questioned closely Mrs. Karin Slaby, Housing Authority director, on waiting lists.

High Cost Forecast. Mr. Jeydel commented on the rocky nature of the site, and said construction would be expensive because blasting might be required. "You'd have expensive rock-blasting with public money. Aren't there cheaper sites?"

He also said the Zoning Board ought to have the right to examine alternate sites. Quoting the "public good" requirements set forth in the zoning ordinance, he suggested "public good" might better be served if people's needs could be met without costing Township taxpayers money.

Asked by Zoning Board member Margaret Broadwater to explain public housing financing, Alvin Gershen, planner who has blocked out the project for Mr. Yedlin, gave a detailed explanation of Federal Housing and Urban Development policies.

The "turn-key" method used here, he explained, starts when the local housing authority applies to HUD for approval. (He explained that housing authorities depend entirely on Federal money.)

Following HUD approval, the authority advertises among private developers who submit proposals if they are interested. The authority selects one. A series of meetings follows, on site, costs, construction, design and the like, provided the developer gets zoning approval. The contract of sale is between Mr. Yedlin and the Authority. HUD annually makes up the dollar difference between rents, and construction-management costs.

No Subsidy Involved. "This is not a subsidy program, like non-profit projects such as Challenges Made. Mr. Dumey told the board, at the start of Mr. Gershen's explanation, that he did not admit Mr. Gershen's qualifications to testify, and he continually challenged Mr. Gershen's planning methods.

Board member J. Taylor Woodward inquired about sidewalks, and Mr. Gershen replied that so far they are only on the Township's Sidewalk Master Plan. Mass transportation, he continued, would come from Mercer Metro buses and would pose, Mercer Metro has assured, "no problems."

Pressing Mr. Gershen on his estimates of housing-project distances from shopping areas,

Mr. Dumey said Mr. Gershen's estimated distances would take elderly Lloyd Terrace residents to the A&P Supermarket, but elderly Mr. Lucas project tenants to the Bon Appetit luxury food shop.

Mr. Garretson, questioning Mrs. Slaby on waiting lists, asked how often she combed the current list of 110 applicants, and she said once a year, although not all at once. The process, she explained, is a continuing one, and lists may be gone over once a week or so.

He asked her how she decided who got the next available apartment and whether she could find 50 elderly Township residents who would qualify.

Need Questioned. She quoted 1970 census figures showing 130 families in the under-$7,000 range, but Mr. Dumey suggested some of these might be University graduate students.

Mrs. Slaby, under questioning about the need, reminded the board that the Authority had been retained by Township Committee as its agent because Committee had established the need through various studies.

When Mr. Garretson asked whether the Township had surveyed the 430 in the census count, Mrs. Slaby said the Authority would not seek out individual families in such a count, and Mr. Garretson commented, "apparently there is no proven need."

Mr. Dumey asked to see the Authority's list of 110 "without the names." Mrs. Slaby told him 30 of the 110 live in the Borough. She explained that, under HUD rules, she must give preference to Borough families in Borough projects, and Township families in Township projects.

An hour or so before the adjourning hour, Mr. Garretson opened the hearing to public comment. A petition of 143 names, opposing the project, was presented by William Brower, 628 Ewing.

Charles Freericks, 351 State Road, proposed a trade: building the housing project on Township-owned land across Route 206 from Community Park, and turning Mr. Yedin's 14.5 acres into a public park.

Time Limit Set. A seven-page statement by Leonard F. Newton, 90 Dempsey Avenue, supported the project. Mr. Newton stubbornly tried to finish reading his statement, although Mr. Garretson had warned him of a five-minute time limit. (The zoning board chairman tried to discourage lengthy statements by asking authors to deposit them with the board, rather than reading them aloud. "This information is for the zoning board, not the audience or the press," he said.)

But people read statements, anyway. In favor of the project were William Kirby, for the Princeton Interfaith Council and the Pastors' Association; Jerome Rose, chairman of the Township Citizens' Advisory Council on Housing and the Rev. Loefferts Loetscher, who posed the basic question, "Do we want it or not?"

PRINCETON MAN SOUGHT

In Trenton Knife Slaying. A 29-year-old Borough man is being sought by Trenton police as the alleged slayer early Saturday morning of a 26-year-old Trenton woman, mother of six.

A warrant for murder has been issued against Lonnie Spruill, 29, of 75 Clay Street, charging him with the knife slaying of Mrs. Geneva P. Christie in the hallway of her Haverstick Homes apartment on Eisenhower Street. Borough Chief Michael Carnevale acknowledged that his department received a 3 a.m. call Saturday from Trenton police requesting aid in the search for Spruill who is still at large.

According to a police report, Spruill was seen in the hallway with Mrs. Christie. There was an argument. Someone heard a thud and Spruill then fled the apartment. Mrs. Christie, a lifelong resident of Trenton who is survived by her husband, James, three sons and three daughters, was pronounced dead at Mercer Hospital.

Borough police said that Spruill is estranged from his wife.

BAR HOURS LONGER?

To Hear Ordinance. Should bars in the Borough be allowed to stay open until 2 a.m.? (They now close at midnight.) How about letting them open Sunday noon, remaining open until 9 p.m.?

Borough Council would like to hear some public opinion. In the hope of finding out what people really want, Council introduced an ordinance expanding hours of service, and will hold public hearing on it next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall.

Incidentally, the new ordinance is tighter than the old: you can't string out your drinks by ordering several just before 2 a.m. When the clock strikes, it's down the hatch, and home.

The controversial Police Committee situation will be back on Council's agenda. Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week that he expects a report from municipal attorney Gordon Griffith on both the legality of the present ordinance and the Police Committee, and the expansion of the Committee's membership.

Council will also hold public hearings Tuesday on ordinances regulating abandoned (or "stored") vehicles, and parking on Mercer Street.

New introductions will be the anti-noise ordinance, and an ordinance adopting a new fire code.

ZONING, AGAIN

Came to Township Hall. The second, informal public meeting on the Township's proposed zoning ordinance revision will be held next Monday at 8 p.m. in Township Hall before

New Police Information Number: 924-8221

You have some information you want to pass on to the police, possibly about drugs. But you don't want to get involved; you don't want to give your name.

Now you can report it easily and anonymously — thanks to a new police information number established by Borough police which is now in operation, 24 hours a day.

Callers need not identify themselves, said Chief Michael Carnevale. They will first hear a recorded message and then their information will be recorded on tape. There is no time limit. The tape will be reviewed each morning and Chief Carnevale promises that all leads and information will be investigated. The number: 924-8221.

Chief Carnevale outlined what he hopes to accomplish with the new number: effect inroads into illicit drug traffic; curb drug abuses more effectively; gather information on gambling activities; and establish a method of communication with citizens who wish to inform the police of situations which may be questionable.

"It's imperative that we have a feeling of community concern. The new number," he said, "will enable people to give us useful information about a wide spectrum of things."

the Township Planning Board.

All Township residents are invited to attend, although very few did attend the first meeting, back in early August. Board chairman Hans K. Sander has said he will hold other meetings, if people seem to want them.

The ordinance has already been introduced by Township Committee, but will not be up for public hearing until October 2.

VOLUNTEERS WANTED

Directory Published. Newcomers looking for ways to become involved in their new community, are invited to examine "Volunteer Opportunities" compiled by the Princeton Area Council of Community Services.

Whether you can spare one hour a week or 20, the choice of services is virtually unlimited, the booklet says. Details of ways volunteers can help are given for 43 organizations and agencies from A (American Red Cross to Y (Youth Employment Service.)

In addition, "Volunteer Opportunities" lists a wide variety of activities for all ages, high school through senior citizens.

This second edition of "Volunteer Opportunities" includes agencies and organizations within the 13-municipality area served by the Council of Community Services, and a few others which are nearby.

Copies are available at the Council office, 221 Witherspoon St., (P.O. Box 201), Princeton, 924-5865; the Princeton Public Library, Witherspoon & Wiggins Streets; the West Windsor Public Library, Village Rd., Princeton Junction; and the Rocky Hill Community Library, Route 518, Rocky Hill.

STEREO, TV TAKEN

From Witherspoon Apartment. A stereo system and a color television set with a combined value of $1,000 were reported stolen last week by James Delaune, 204 Witherspoon Street.

Mr. Delaune told police that someone entered his apartment by forcing a rear door. Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm investigated.

Two Typewriters Stolen.

Two electric typewriters with a total value of $472 were stolen Friday from the office of Petroleum Engineer Publishing Co., 245 Nassau Street, while the secretary was out to lunch.

Chief Michael Carnevale reported that the thief was observed coming out of the building and police are following through on the description. The intruder, he said, slipped a lock to get inside the office. Ptl. William Hunter made the initial investigation.

HOME IS ENTERED

On Leigh Avenue. The home of Maureen Rupp, 96 Leigh Avenue, was entered last week by someone who reached thru a missing pane of glass and unlocked the front door.

From the kitchen, the thief stole two sets of car keys, a farm to obtain new bank checks and a box of gelatin capsules. One of the sets of keys belonged to a neighbor whose car was stolen and recovered that same day. Ptl. Mario Musso investigated.

POACHERS TAKE BASS

From Private Pond. Sometimes one gets the feeling that there are as many unkind people in the world as there are fish in the sea.

Two years ago, Albert Weisenburger of Mount Lucas Road dug a 12-by-6-foot pond, lined it with plastic and stocked it with gold fish. He enjoyed it so much that more recently he added four 8-inch Bluegills and a 12-inch Bass. Kids from the neighborhood.

The artists and craftsmen work with vitreous art enamels, bronze, copper, brass, steel and wood. The materials are forged, sheared, welded, brazed, fired and stained. No two pieces are ever the same. Using some techniques employed over 2,000 years ago, pure enamels are silted and applied to the metals, and fired at white-hot temperatures. Most pieces are decorated and fired three or four times. The colors are as permanent as the ages. With time, the metal finishes, treated with acids, paints, stains and lacquers, have been designed to acquire an even lovelier, soft patina.

Last week, the bass was gone — apparently caught by fish poachers. One of the Bluegills was found dead in the pool with a fish hook in its mouth. A fisherman's worm box was nearby.

A nice long wait
Before there's snow.

Summer still has a fortnight to run, but cooler temperatures are forecasting the eventual trend. The thermometer readings in the early morning hours have been closer to 50 than 60.

Fair skies for the next day or two may be followed by showers late Friday. Another tropical storm is brewing off the southern tip of Florida, but no action in these parts is expected to spoil a pleasant weekend.

the various vacations.

Flight II will also supply the manpower to carry flags in the parade at the state fairgrounds this Sunday.

The HEW grant comes from the Youth Development and Delinquency Prevention Division, payable in 12 monthly installments of $670. The application was made by Barrie Peterson, Flight II director; Steven Cohen and Robert Davidson, who report that HEW considers Flight II "One of the best projects... We're enthused because Flight II is a youth-operated program," quoting HEW's Norman Feldman.

The group's budget is $38,000, which the staff hopes to meet through continued support of the Princeton Youth Fund, which last year gave $7,500, and from individual contributions. About $7,500 was raised from 200 donors last year. The balance of the funds comes from the municipalities, proceeds of events and from community groups.

The fund drive starts off with a "Phonathon" from 8 to 9 p.m. this Thursday. About 20 community leaders and past contributors are expected to gather at First National Bank and tee off the drive with phone calls to potential contributors. Young people of Flight II will do the follow-up. Samuel Mativier and John Hoff assisted in the planning.

Staff appointments have been announced. The post of coordinator for drugs and health is still open; interviews will be held September 14 and 15. The job requires ensuring that Princeton youth know where and how to get help, and making sure they get it. Sign-up sheets are posted in the Flight II office.

Four new staff members will serve part time: Amy Luckner, education workshops, the Kiwanis program and rap sessions; Karen Eisler, publicity coordination; Scott Schelling, liaison with recreation groups, and Jims Vieland, community service projects. Full-timers continuing on are Barrie Peterson, director; Steven Cohen, program director, and Michael Novak, recreation.

Full events include yoga classes, guitar workshops with Barry Peterson, macrame, cooking workshops with Joe Britton. Planning meetings are held weekly and new ideas are welcomed.

The Kiwanis Club members will host young people at their places of business, giving students an inside look at such vocations as investments, dentistry, journalism, insurance, banking engineering, retailing and contracting.

The Word gets Around...

While stocks and bonds went down... and stayed down... real estate in the Princeton area kept right on going up. Some property owners who sold at the right time made as much as 90% on their invested capital in 3 years.

Let us show you the figures. At a time when the stock market is discouraging, when money put away in a saving bank increases in value at about the same rate that inflation erodes its buying power, it is a great comfort to learn that there is a way to invest in real estate which can enable you to create capital gains that, in turn, can be re-invested... and thus enable you to pyramid your profits.

Yes... the word gets around. There is hope for professional people. The money you earn can be coaxed to grow! Phone for an appointment...

University Students to Live, Work in Homes

Living with a Princeton family could be a lot more rewarding for a student than living in a dormitory . . . and certainly cheaper, if the student is willing to do yard-work, baby-sitting or driving.

Princeton University is experimenting this fall with just such an off-campus living project. The first student — and wife — arrived last week to take up residence with one of the first families, and so far, everything is going well.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Mezey, 73 Library Place, are the host-employers. Fred and Nancy Damon are the student-workers. Preparing supper for the three Mezey children and driving them to and from wherever they are going and fro-ing, will be the Damon assignments.

"We could use more host families," says Ruth Anne Offenbauer, who is co-ordinating the project with Elizabeth Ranney for the University's Dean of Student Affairs. Call 452-3052, if interested.

Actually, several Princeton families have signed up,

BY CYCLE TO LIBRARY PLACE: Fred and Nancy Damon, far right, biked 1,200 miles from their home in Minneapolis to the Library Place home of Mrs. Frederick Mezey (left). The Damons will live with the Mezeys under a new arrangement started this fall by Princeton University. That's Jennifer Mezey, 12, watching while Fred Damon repairs the bike belonging to her brother Barney, 10. Stephanie Mezey, 15, is the other.

but some live too far out of town for students without cars. Mrs. Offenbauer would also like more families so that students have a choice of personalities and lifestyles.

All undergraduates except freshmen, and grad. students are eligible to make these living arrangements. Fred Damon is a graduate student in anthropology. Although Nancy Damon's field is history and international relations, she will be working part-time in the Anthropology Department, as well as meshing her life with that of the Mezey's.

The University suggests that a student could work 40 hours a month, for room only, and 65 hours for room and full board. Mostly, the University expects that students will take on a family in return for room only.

Student and family are expected to block out their own agreements. Because a student is subject to exams, papers, vacations and, quite possibly, hours that seem odd in relation to normal family life, the family is asked to keep its requirements flexible.

By and large, a student could be asked to do anything a member of the family would do — take out the trash, wash the dishes, take care of the baby, rake the leaves. Driving is fine, too, but the family must handle insurance.

Most families, smiles Mrs. Offenbauer, want somebody to keep an eye on the kids.

COLLEGES MAY BE HURT

By Drop in Birthrate. The problems posed by smaller college and university enrollments—not the familiar demands for more space—are likely to be among the major long-range concerns of tomorrow's educator, in the view of Princeton University President William G. Bowen.

Foreseeing a "dramatic decline" in higher education's enrollments continuing "at least into the early 1990's," the 38-year-old economist—who succeeded Robert F. Goheen this summer—outlined some of the consequences of this anticipated drop-off in demands for admission. He gives his views in an article published this week in the latest issue of Princeton's national quarterly, "University."

Interviewed by the magazine's editor, William McCleery, Dr. Bowen points out that the decline is a consequence of a drop in the birthrate. While just having come through a period in which the number of college-age young people has been increasing significantly, the outlook for the next 15 years is that the rate of increase will drop off, and actually become negative in the 1980's. "The number of 18-year-olds in 1985, Dr. Bowen notes, "is supposed to be 12 percent less than in the mid-1970's. So having gone through a period of enormous pressures, and also enormous opportunities, resulting from this increase in enrollment, we're entering a period of what amounts to a declining demand for higher education."

Battles for Survival. One very practical consequence is that "a number of institutions, especially private ones, are facing battles for survival, because they depend to a greater degree than public institutions on income from tuition," said Dr. Bowen, whose work on financial trends in higher education has brought him wide recognition.

"This battle for survival has very serious implications for American higher education, in general, which draws much of its strength from pluralism; that is, from the presence of many strong private and many strong public institutions working in different ways together. If this diversity were to be eroded, American higher education would suffer significantly."

Another danger of the decrease in students, in Dr. Bowen's view, is that it will bring about an accompanying decrease in the demands for college teachers, among the most important products of the graduate schools. This in turn could weaken the graduate schools, and, as a result, all of higher education itself.

On the threshold of Princeton's 227th year, Dr. Bowen stresses that one of the very important things about any first-rate university is that "it brings together in one place an excellent graduate school, an outstanding undergraduate school, and a group of people who take scholarship very seriously."

Damage to any one of these three elements is bound to affect the whole enterprise. Now as a consequence of the population change that we've been discussing, the number of Ph.D.'s able to find teaching positions is much diminished, and, for this and other reasons, support for graduate education has fallen catastrophically."

Dr. Bowen points out that at Princeton the number of graduate students supported by the federal government or other outside-the-University fellowships had fallen from around 750 in 1968-69 to an

McCrohan Dinner Saturday

A testimonial dinner-dance in honor of Chief Peter J. McCrohan, who retired July 31 after 37 years on the Borough police force, will be held Saturday at the Nassau Inn.

Dinner will be at 7:30 with dancing from 9 'til midnight. A Dutch-treat cocktail bar will open at 6:30. Tickets are $12.50 per person. Those wishing to attend may make arrangements by calling Detective Douglas Watson at Borough Headquarters, 921-8108.

anticipated 250 a year or two from now ("That's a major change by anybody's reckoning.")

If the graduate school were allowed to contract to the same degree as the reduction in outside support, "Princeton simply would not be the university that it is today and that I think it has to be in the future," he went on to say.

Strain on Faculty. A third effect of the decline in the birthrate is, in Dr. Bowen's view, "important, though perhaps less obvious." That is that "as jobs for faculty members decrease in number, there are great strains and stresses within the academic community and particularly within the faculty."

"I remember so well the situation when I started teaching," (He joined the faculty here at Princeton," he in 1958, the same year he received his Princeton Ph.D.) "Then, as now, the probability of any one person's continuing on to become a tenured professor was not great—perhaps one in three made it—but my colleagues and I really didn't think much about that."

We thought, "Well, it's a good university, let's see what we can do. And if we do well, if we like it, and if they like us, we'll stay on. If not, there are plenty of other good places to go." We simply didn't worry about future employment. Today, that just isn't so.

"The effect on young faculty members of negative decisions — of decisions not to promote them, not to retain them — are far more serious in personal terms than they used to be," he added. "And this has far more serious effects on morale, on esprit, than is generally recognized."

"This insecurity, this decrease in perceived alternatives, can effect scholarship, collegialship, teaching. It can really sidetrack the educational thrust of a university."

The question of declining enrollment is one of several major concerns discussed by Dr. Bowen in the "University" article, which ranges over his views on higher education's response generally to changing times.

Dr. Bowen, who became the 17th President of Princeton on June 30, also discusses in the interview two other concerns, the change in the degree of consensus both in society at large and on college campuses and "the increasing complexity and interdependence of fields of knowledge."

In discussing the changing, or changed, degrees of consensus, Dr. Bowen stated: "One can't help but be struck by the increase in tension, in divisiveness, in anger, in frustration, in disappointment, which so many people feel as the country wrestles with some very, very hard issues: issues of war and peace, of relations among the races, of concerns of various ethnic groups, of the role of women in the society, of the relation between us and our natural environment. This whole set of larger issues impinges on us in ways that cause discussion about them to polarize us, to be sharply divisive."

TUNED UP AND READY: John Gwynn (left) joins his fellow Medcar workers alongside the Medcar truck. Next to Mr. Gwynn are Michael Underwood, Eugene Reed and Wilford Wright. Next year, when New Jersey's new emission control standards go into effect, Medcar expects to add a sophisticated infra-red unit to its tune-up equipment. Shown here, is an electronic scope.

The link between a class's lube job and the concept of service to mankind through the Church may seem so slight but it's invisible.

But for John Gwynn, Episcopal priest formerly on the Trinity staff and now director of his own auto maintenance company, the link is not only visible and strong, but symbolic of the kind of earthly vitality required if the Church is indeed to serve mankind.

"Medcar" is Mr. Gwynn's (he temptation is still strong) to say "Father" Gwynn) company. Its mechanics, like Mr. Gwynn, are black.

From their modern mobile van, equipped with advanced auto tune-up equipment, they service your car in the parking lot where you work, when you work. You never have to leave your desk.

Sign up for $119 a year, and you get a full tune-up twice a year; pre-Motor Vehicle safety inspection once a year; snow tire installation in the fall; snow - tire removal in the spring. All work is guaranteed; any make of car can be serviced.

Firm Base is Vital. "The minority community must have an economic base," Mr. Gwynn believes, and that is the base of Medcar.

In a sermon on "The Business of the Church," Mr. Gwynn explained to parishioners that he was leaving Trinity because he felt the time had come to "make a move which might allow me to work more fully in business and, with success, help provide an even more intense and direct attack on the problems of enabling minority community people to achieve social, political and economic viability."

"I believe in the concept of service . . . I am moving to what I think to be a deeper level of the Church's struggle."

Mr. Gwynn started with an auto-leasing company in partnership with his brother. The cars needed to be serviced, and Mr. Gwynn realized that they could be serviced on the road, given a truck and a technician.

From road service to parking lot service was a quick cable jump, and "Medcar" came into being.

On the lot, prudent economies for Medcar and convenience for its customers are identical, Mr. Gwynn comments: "By getting customers on contract, in places where they park regularly for long periods of time, we can operate economically and efficiently," he explains.

Parking lots around company buildings, Penn Central lots where commuters park all day - that's the kind of storage spot Medcar can service easily.

"Response has been fine so far, and companies are letting us on their lots, by and large," he reports.

At present, Medcar is handling five cars a day, but has the capacity for at least three times that many, even with a single truck.

The truck is International's DM-106 Medcar bought the truck in May. Wilford Wright, Princeton mechanic and chief of Medcar's technicians, assembled its equipment and by the end of July, the company was ready to go.

Experts. "We've got three technicians - Mr. Wright and

News Of The THEATRES

A SECOND PREMIERE. . . .
For McCarter. The second production of the season for McCarter will, like the first, be an American premiere. The repertory company will present "The Tooth of Crime," a play by Sam Shepard, described as a "rock tragedy."
The Shepard play opened in London this July, to critical praise: "a fascinating tension, said Irving Wardell of the Times; 'a skeletal clarity that is stunning,' from Jack Tinker of the Daily Mail.

"The Tooth of Crime" will receive new staging by Louis Criss, McCarter's artistic director. Shepard himself has written the music for his play, which concerns the super-star rock singer and the violent, clashing elements in the psychedelic rock-music world.
Shepard, who is 28 years old, has written many one-act plays, chiefly produced off-off-Broadway. Three of them won him an "Obie" Award. His full-length play, "Operation Sidewinder," played the Vivian Beaumont Theatre in Lincoln Center in the spring of 1970.

"Agamemnon," McCarter's first premiere will, of course, be the verse version of "Agamemnon" by William Alfred. It will serve to launch the season with an opening night performance on October 26.
Following "The Tooth of Crime," McCarter will present Shakespeare's "The Tempest" in a March 1 opening. The new company's fourth play is still to be announced. It will either be Beckett's "Endgame" or Joe Orton's "Loot," depending on casting negotiations. The season will end in March with Ibsen's "Rosmersholm."

the part of Aegon, poet to Clytemnestra's court in "Agamemnon," and he will also teach the University's new undergraduate course in acting styles.

Mr. Kepros is already familiar to Princeton audiences, who will recall his Armolphe in "School for Wives," and his "Macbeth" from the 1965 repertory season.

In New York, he has played Henry VI for Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival and Hamlet for the Phoenix Repertory Company. All in all, he has played 40 Shakespearean roles, ranging from Starveling to Iago.

In the classroom, Mr. Kepros has been actor-teacher at Purdue, the University of Virginia and the University of Utah, which is his alma mater.

He taught stage make-up at the Juilliard School and an acting class at Circle-in-the-Square.

As a student, Mr. Kepros attended the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, and worked in Paris on a Fulbright grant, studying Moliere and the French Theatre. He also studied with Uta Hagen and Milton Katselas in New York.

Leading roles in "Agamemnon" will be played by Dolph Sweet and Nan Martin. Mr. Sweet will play the title role and Miss Martin will be Clytemnestra, his queen.

Mr. Sweet has been in various television dramas and in films, and on Broadway, played Max the Painter in "The Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window."

Miss Martin, who played the mother in the film "Goodbye, Columbus," has performed for Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival in such roles as Beatrice in "Much Ado," Gertrude in "Hamlet" and Portia in "The Merchant of Venice."

CHINESE OPERA COMING
Full, in Costume. A full-scale, full-dress production of a Chinese opera, "Legend of the White Snake" will be presented Saturday, October 7 at 8 p.m. in the Kirby Arts Center at the Lawrenceville School under the sponsorship of the Chinese Student Club of Princeton University.

Tickets are $5 and $3, with a $1 student rate. They may be purchased at the University Store.

Performers in "Legend of the White Snake" will be singers of the Yeh Yu Chinese Opera Association, founded 14 years ago by a group of Chinese opera artists. The group performs with a full orchestra of Chinese instruments, including moon guitar, three-string guitar, large and small gongs, cymbals and drums, two-stringed Chinese violin, and a tchi flute.

For the presentation in the Kirby Arts Center, the Opera Association will use a slide projector with a continuous English translation so the audience will be able to follow the action.

An explanatory talk on the Chinese classical instruments will also be part of the production.

FOLK 'N' ROCK

Nine Concerts Planned. A series of nine folk and rock concerts will be sponsored by McCarter this coming fall, and tickets for all nine will go on sale at the box office next Monday.

folk and rock events will be available for the first time at Ticketron outlets throughout New Jersey.

All events are scheduled for Saturday evenings at 8 p.m., and will take place both at McCarter and at Alexander Hall on the University campus.

The season will open on October 7 with the return of Commander Cody and his Lost Planet Airmen, whose recording of "Hot Red Lincoln" has been a major hit for the past several months. A week later on October 14, McCarter will present the new team of Kenny Loggins and Jim Messina, who will be joined by Special Guest Casey Kelly. On October 21, songwriter Randy Newman will come to town and the Mahavishnu Orchestra, featuring John McLaughlin will return to Princeton on October 28.

November 11 will be double bill night: Billy Preston and Taj Mahal will present two shows (at 8 and 11). On November 18, singer-writer Eric Anderson will appear with special guest Leo Kottke.

The electric-rock sounds of McKendree Spring are scheduled for November 25 (special guest to be announced) and Harry Chapin of "Taxi" fame has been set for December 2. The fall season will conclude on Monday December 11, when the New Riders of the Purple Sage will pay a return visit.

Concerts by Commander Cody, Randy Newman, and McKendree Spring will be at McCarter Theatre, while all others are scheduled for Alexander Hall.

TECHNICIANS ADDED

For McCarter. Two former members of the McCarter technical staff will re-join the theatre this fall, and two new technical staff members will be added to the theatre's roster.

Larry B. Achziger, technical director last season at McCarter and set designer this summer for Summer Intime, will be Lighting Technician. Douglas A. Cooper, who was assistant scene designer for McCarter's last repertory season in 1971, will be Technical Director.

Mr. Achziger did the sets for Summer Intime's "A Flea in Her Ear" and "What the Butler Saw." He also did lights for "Butter." He also designed lighting and sets for the off-Broadway hit, "Godspell."

Mr. Cooper was stage mechanic and layout carpenter at Washington's Arena Stage last season and served as master carpenter and technical director for the Utah Shakespeare Festival.

The two newcomers are Steve McCurkie and Robert Farley who will be stage managers for the new season.

IT'S NEW To Us

JAMES BEARD EXPECTED
 At Bookstore Opening. If your copy of James Beard's cookbook is worn and battle-flecked, you can get a new one, autographed by the author himself, at the formal opening of "Titles Unlimited," the new bookstore in Montgomery Shopping Center, Route 206.

Gourmet Beard is expected Thursday afternoon, September 14. There will be a chance to sample a dish he has prepared, according to Mrs. Ruth Keusch, who assists her husband Art in running the store.

Titles Unlimited's formal opening is from September 14 through Sunday, September 17. It is a spacious, carpeted, attractive bookstore, about equally divided between hard-bound and paperback offerings.

It is actually the third bookstore that Art Keusch has opened. "It's his baby," his pleasant wife says. "This is something he has always wanted to do, and he geared his experience towards it." He made his first plunge in 1962 with a bookshop in Union

Square, New York, a long, narrow store about 10 feet wide. "It was successful, but we hated New York!" Mrs. Keusch goes on. "About six years ago we opened 'Titles Unlimited' in Highland Park, and we have been well received there."

Selection Varied. "What we try to do is have a more personalized bookstore, with a little bit of everything. Some of the art and (coffee-table) books are on special price for the opening. People are already buying them for Christmas gifts." The shop has been open for about a month, with scheduled deliveries spaced out by Mr. Keusch "so that we would have time to take care of them!"

His wife continues, "We also offer excellent special order service. In some cases we can get a book in two or three days. We're members of the American Booksellers Association, which helps speed it along."

There is an entire section devoted to children's books including award-winning paperbacks in larger-than-average size. During the opening, children's hardbounds are reduced from $4.95 to $3.50, and there are other opening specials. The "cocktail table" books—big, profusely illustrated in color—include the Larousse Encyclopedia of Animal Life, a beautiful book, priced during the opening days at $9.95 instead of about $25. Fred Hoyle's "Astronomy" will be pegged at $4.95. "100 Great Guns" compiled by Merrill Lindsay, is also down from $25 to $9.95 for the opening. Another is "Man-of-War," down to $10.95 instead of $23.95. There are many, many more, all good to squirrel away for a gift.

Opening Day Specials. Titles Unlimited has all the Modern Library books—and they will be specially priced at $1 each during the opening days. The Modern Library giants will be $2 instead of $4.95. There are shelves and shelves of books on crafts, gardening, various hobbies. We noticed "The Travelers' Book of Photography," among them, another illustrated, enormous volume.

There are mysteries and some fascinating mystery anthologies, such as "The Murder Book" and the "Complete Sherlock Holmes" for those who enjoy the chills. We saw books on horses, cacti, medieval epics, tennis, bicycling and more.

"The Great Book of Wine," and "The Italian Book of Cooking" are extremely beautiful—and big—books, also low priced for the four days.

The paperbacks are both quality and mass market types. There's an entire shelf devoted to the American Indian. On another, we noticed "The Israelis" by Elon, and "The Israel-Arab Reader." We found the classic biographies, even "Geronimo."

For artists, the Abrams' art books in full color for study ($1.95); for collectors, the two-volume Norton facsimile edition of the First Folio of Shakespeare ($75—but $29.95 during opening days).

Titles Unlimited is a family project. So when you stop by, you'll probably meet the younger Keusches: Nancy 17, Beth 15, Karen 12, and the miniature poodle, Licorice. Hours for the bookstore are 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays; 10 to 6 on Saturdays, and 11 to 5 on Sunday.

CLOTHES FOR SCHOOL

At Allens'. It's the layered look for girls age 7 to 14, according to Allen's Children's Center, 134 Nassau Street. The greatly enlarged store has school, play and party clothes for boys and girls of all ages, as well as an extensive collection of infants and maternity wear.

The layered look, in Danskings, is a very new little dress in a solid color knit with brightly striped sleeves ($10). With it, the girls wear tights striped to the knee.

All of the dresses for school are knits, such as a jumper in red plaid with a ruffle at the top of the armhole, or a layered dress, that is actually

DOUBLE BILLS BOOKED

To Open Film Season. A pair of double-feature programs focusing on actor Marlon Brando and director Sam Peckinpah will open McCarter's film season the weekend of September 15-16.

A "Marlon Brando Spectacular," featuring Brando as Stanley Kowalski in the 1951 screen version of Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," will be shown Friday, Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. The film has just been released for non-theatrical showing. Directed by Elia Kazan, "Streetcar" features Vivien Leigh, Karl Malden and Kim Hunter.

"Streetcar" will be followed at 9:15 p.m. by John Huston's "Reflections in a Golden Eye," in which Brando gives a performance considered by many to be his finest of the 1960's. The film co-stars Elizabeth Taylor, Julie Harris, Brian Keith and Robert Forster.

Admission to both evenings will be on sale at the box office on the day of the showings from 10 a.m.

GARUEN

Casablanca and To Have and Have Not (double feature now playing). Two adventure classics with Humphrey Bogart in the tough guy lead roles return to give the older generation a reminiscent look. The Bogart films have become a tad among the college students during the past several years.

Ingrid Bergman nearly captured the country with her playing of the love interest in "Casablanca." Lauren Bacall, most recently to be seen on Broadway in "Applause," was an instant hit in her leading role in "To Have and Have Not."

Frenzy (now playing) is a stirring triumph for director Alfred Hitchcock, providing unquestionable proof that the old master has reacquired his deft touch with a horror story.

Filmed in London, the story revolves around a couple of old RAF buddies and the rapemurders of several women that are plaguing the city. Hitchcock lets the movie audience in on who the killer is early in the film, and the suspense centers on how he will trip himself up.

Two or three of the scenes will be long remembered as Hitchcock at his best. An eight-minute episode in the office of one of the victim's (her fate is sealed the moment her surprise visitor closes the door behind him) offers the last movie word in strangulation. Once Hitchcock is through, he never has to show the grisly act again.

Then, there is the fantastic "potato sack scene" wherein the killer in the back of a fast moving truck, is desperately trying to find the corpse he has hidden in one of the sacks, digging through the dusty potatoes until he finds a foot, then a leg, then . . .

Although Frenzy has its grim moments, Hitchcock as usual has interjected some extremely comic parts to relieve the tension. Also in a departure from past films, big name stars have been passed over in favor of an impeccably chosen cast of excellent English performers.

All in all, Frenzy is a film that definitely measures up to some of the earlier Hitchcock masterpieces such as Rear Window or Psycho.

Skirts are knits, or woven plaids, or a dirdid with a wool fringe at the hem. There is a long red plaid, falling from a red waistband.

The girls' outerwear ranges from blazers to some wonderful winter coats in brushed suede-look, with fleece at neckline and hem; others in plaid plaids. The coats are boot length.

Allen's stocks a great many shirts—body shirts, shirts with collars, with turtle necks, with Victorian ruffles. There is a good variety of color—the standards and interesting off-shades.

Since girls wear pants to school as often as skirts, Allen's has the season's plaid favorites. Also solid colors with appliques such as a strip of flowers on a navy jean. There are crushed corduroys in cheery browns; corduroy prints and just plain western jeans. There's a choice of hip huggers and regular cut.

Boys' Wear. The entire front part of Allen's new section is devoted to clothes for boys. The pants selection is awesome, from the classic straight leg for conservatives to the newest in flares. As for size, it is complete up to 38 waist for the husky in the family.

There are dress pants in fine knits, casual, wide-wale corduroys with small studs down the outer seams; denims, plaids, tweeds, the whole works.

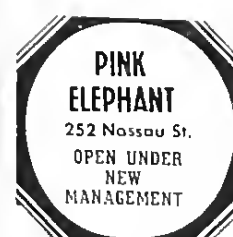

Both short and long sleeve shirts are out for this changing season. We noticed knits in various designs, and cottons.

Color is big this year, also shirts with cargo pockets (patch pockets with a snap closing). Some of the most interesting shirts are by Van Heusen. These include weaves, stripes, zipped collars, mock and turtle necks as well as the standard dress shirts. In medium cotton, for one, white vertical stripes down the center front and at the collar and cuff.

In belts, Allen's offers suedes with two-tone stripes interwoven; solid calf; harness hardware accents; slim to very wide widths. (Slim for the guy who buys the straight-leg pants.)

CPO jackets are in; this year it's dark plaid. There is a good choice of tweed sport jackets—including the classic narrow lapels as well as the new wide lapels.

Sweaters for boys and girls: Heathered shetlands, argyle knits, and the big style of the season, bicycle sweaters, all-over rib knit that the boys think is great. For the girls, the newest is the short, knitted poncho, in cable stitch or crocheted. Some are all white, others varicolored, and all are fringed (from $6)

Recycling Tips for Your Household

Provided by The Conservation Coalition

In order to make recycling work in your household, you will want to take a few minutes to give it some thought. Try to plan according to the amount of recyclable materials your family will generate in four weeks' time.

You will need to arrange the space under the sink with either bags and/or neatly fitted cardboard boxes into which you can toss the recyclables. Try to arrange a space in a closet or cupboard for another box or two.

If you have a cellar or garage, the smaller storage units can be emptied into larger ones until collection day. All you really need is one extra large garbage can into which you will put whatever commodity is to be picked up that Wednesday. Once it is emptied and returned to the house, it can be used to store the item which will be collected the next week.

Recycling simply requires the orderly saving of clean, separated materials... glass, newspaper and metal. Glass is bulky but it is a clean material and should not create a nuisance. Newspapers take little room if neatly slacked on the floor or shelf. Flattened metals use little space.

Consider the very few cans and jars per day as part of your dishes. Pull the labels off the cans. Put jars and cans into the dishwasher or sink along with your other dishes.

Remember, you are not saving garbage or trash! You are collecting clean containers and neat bundles of newspaper for no more than one month at a time. You are also lengthening the life of your town landfill site. You are saving valuable (and some non-renewable) natural resources by putting the goods manufactured from them back into circulation.

You are also taking a realistic look at the amount of waste (?) your household creates. Is it all really necessary? Perhaps you are the best judge of that. The Borough of Princeton has made a broad commitment to the recycling effort. It is now up to the citizens to decide whether that commitment will be responded to. Re-think some of your disposal habits. Re-train yourself to save recyclables.

About the author — Eve F. Kraft, a tennis player since her youth, founded Princeton's Community Tennis Program nearly 15 years ago. Widely-copied by other communities, noted for its in-depth teaching, the program draws nearly 1,000 boys and girls including a teenage Leader Corps of 50 or 60. "One of the best junior programs in the country," is the comment of a past USLTA president. Mrs. Kraft, an Antioch College alumna, is the wife of Lewis Kraft and mother of three sons. They all play tennis.

The Rising Generation

WHO'S DOING WHOSE "THING"?

by EVE F. KRAFT,

Princeton Community Tennis Program

There is so much we would like our youngsters to have and to achieve.

So we overexpose and overprogram them — often too soon and too much.

Often, sadly enough, oblivious to their own interests, talents and needs.

This phenomenon happens in the academic world; it occurs in the field of music and art. Particularly, it typifies the realm of sports.

A classic example is the Orange Bowl junior tennis tournament I witnessed many years ago in Florida for 10 year olds and under.

One reporter remarked: "The event was marked by tears, cheating, and parents!"

The anxiety to please parents is so great that the tears and cheating inevitably result from tremendous inner-tension. A child, when his mother and/or father hang breathlessly on each point, feels obligated to win at any cost.

Is it worth it? We don't believe so. Not just at age 10 — but at any age.

Aware of such pitfalls we have gradually decided to adhere to the following tenets, regardless of parental pressure: (We also feel that these principles apply to other endeavors not just to tennis.)

(1) We believe in not starting a child in formal tennis lessons too soon — third grade is time enough.

If instruction begins too early, the child whose motor ability is not yet ready becomes frustrated. He often gives up.

The well-coordinated youngster, on the other hand, often peaks too soon and becomes bored with the game, just when he's old enough to forge ahead on his own initiative at the junior high or high school level.

(2) We try not to rush the very young beginner, even if he shows exceptional promise.

Let young children master the new skills gradually — enjoying the sociability of their own peer group.

It's like the roller skating twins — one begins too soon, the other at an optimum time. Yet, their skating ability eventually reaches the same level.

(3) A corollary lesson is that we try never to write off the slower learner, and similarly, never to be over-confident that the early bloomer will continue to flourish.

Both groups have surprises in store for us. So we parents and educators must be wary to develop our attitudes accordingly. Allow time for the late starters to gather steam and confidence; pace the eager beavers so they don't burn out too quickly.

(4) We try to resist any undue pressure to "create champions" as a primary goal of our program.

We're certainly dedicated to quality instruction — and to opening up opportunities for advanced training. But when? How? And with which students?

Very few, we find, are interested in intensive tournament play. Only a handful wish to take the inordinate amount of time required to be a genuine champion.

Most youngsters (and adults, too) play for exercise, for fun and relaxation. Yet, parents often criticize us for not being more high-powered in trying to develop their son or daughter into a 'top, winning player. Our question is always — Is it the child's wish to enter competition or is it the parents'?

(5) Doesn't the problem boil down to deciding which are our dreams for our children — and which are theirs?

We feel our primary role as educators is to provide the type of instruction and program whereby motivation for improvement eventually comes from students, not from parents. Would-be tournament players are certainly encouraged — but we keep working toward a goal whereby such single-minded emphasis — if it develops at all — comes from within the youngster himself.

(6) As a result of our struggles on how to handle parents and competition, another concept that has taken hold in the program: stronger understanding of the importance of allowing for and appreciating individual differences, limitations, and interests.

We're as proud of the poorly coordinated child who has progressed enough to find one other player of his ability with whom he can enjoy the game as we are of the trophy winner.

We are as pleased with our teenage teachers-in-training (hundreds of them over the years) who have learned a useful skill and means for gainful employment as we are of the exceptional few who have earned a tournament ranking. And by the same token, we try to make the budding champion feel good if he expresses a desire to spend all of his time working on his game instead of joining the Leader Corps and helping with the beginners.

These experiences and conclusions are not unique to tennis. We express them here because we feel they apply to all of us who are concerned with young people.

If the lines of communication are kept open, if we are more responsive to their real feelings and inner needs, the result will be more self-reliant, confident, and happy individuals. They will be doing their best according to their talents and wishes, not pressured into a mold we have fashioned for them.

Bike Registration Program Set for Sept. 11-15

The free bicycle registration program, inaugurated last year by Borough police, will be held again the week of September 11-15. The place will be the same — the former Miss Fine's School gymnasium behind Borough Hall — and the hours for all five days will be 2 to 5 p.m.

Calling the first year's response "very gratifying," Chief Michael Carnevale reported that stolen bicycles have been recovered through the program. So far, 588 bikes have been registered.

A bicycle owner need not be a Borough resident to register, he emphasized. The process of stamping a number in the frame is a simple one and takes only five to 10 minutes. The owner's name, address, telephone number, manufacturer's serial number, Borough registration number and description of the bicycle are then filled out in triplicate.

The owner receives one copy which he can keep in his wallet, much like a car registration. The police file a second copy of make and model and the last alphabetically.

Chief Carnevale added that he has also talked with the Princeton University security department and he hopes to take the program to the campus and register students' bicycles.

two assistants, all members of the minority community — on our truck," Mr. Gwynn says. "they do a full lube job, oil change, filter change, new spark plugs — a complete tune-up. Heavier work is done by trainees or the assistants under Mr. Wright's direction. Then he does the fine tuning."

Medicar's technicians, and Mr. Gwynn, are particularly proud of their electronic scope, which can show a pattern of all the systems in a car, for diagnostic purposes. Most garages don't have one, Mr. Gwynn says.

The Medicar staff includes young trainees who are learning from older, experienced mechanics like Mr. Wright. In time, the company hopes to have a shop where young men ("... or girls!" Mr. Gwynn adds) can be trained.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wright himself continues to attend schools to keep up on the latest in auto repair.

Desk Work, Inside Medicar's office, in the Opinion Research building, are Mr. Gwynn and Lawrence Campbell, who is on the sales staff.

"We want a strong Princeton base, so we are targeting on the big lots," Mr. Gwynn says. "We go to a company and get their OK to go onto the lot, leave ad flyers on the cars — or, in some cases, companies will notify employees through inter-office mail. Then the customer calls us, and our truck comes up."

"We are looking for another salesman," he continues, "we want to bring in the kind of management, in sales and finance, that can cope with growth, because we plan to grow."

Growth, for the immediate future, means a small trailer, Mr. Gwynn says eagerly.

"We would run a car up a ramp into an opening in the side of the trailer. Inside, we'll be able to do front-end alignment, high-speed wheel balance, tire rotation, all with advanced equipment."

A fleet of seven service vehicles by winter — that's Medicar's present goal.

Also for the future are emergency tow service, car washing and the like.

With Medicar established as a strong, profit-making business, providing a strong, profit-making base for the minority community, Mr. Gwynn hopes he can create a non-profit organization, using a controlling share of Medicar profits for community benefit.

KICK-OFF THIS MONDAY

For United Fund. Though plans for the Princeton Area United Community Fund-Red Cross Campaign have been underway since the Fund board approved the 1972 budget in the spring, the campaign kick-off will take place on Monday afternoon.

At that time, members of the United Fund Board and Budget Committee, representatives of 21 agencies supported by the Fund, leaders of all phases of the Campaign and elected officials representing the communities within the Fund Area will meet in the Prince William Room of the Campaign.

The program will include the presentation of awards for outstanding achievement to representatives of those business and industrial installations in this area which performed unusually well in the 1971 Campaign.

The following agencies are supported by the Princeton Area United Community Fund: George Washington Council of the Boy Scouts, Child Guidance Center of Mercer County, Children's Home Society of New Jersey, the Council of Community Services, Delaware-Raritan Girl Scouts, Family Service Agency, Florence Crittenton Home, Hightstown Day Care Center, Hightstown YMCA, Homemakers Service, Princeton Nursery School, Princeton YMCA and YWCA, Red Cross, Retarded Children's Association of Mercer County, U.S.O. Service Center in Trenton and the Youth Center of Princeton.

Also, in Montgomery Township: Family Service of Somerville, Rolling Hills Girl Scout Council, Visiting Nurses of Somerville and the Watchung Boy Scout Council.

Those who will participate in the program will include Charles Scholl, Assistant Campaign Chairman for 1972, Richard J. Magee, President of the United Fund, Leslie L. Vivian Jr., vice-president for Administration of the United Fund and Joseph Moore, President of the Princeton Youth Center.

LAWRENCEVILLE TO OPEN

With Largest Enrollment. Preparations are underway at The Lawrenceville School to welcome the largest student enrollment in the School's 163-year history — 732 boys from 44 states and 22 foreign countries.

Significant in this record is an increase in the number of day students to 202, a record in itself. About 1 out of every 7 students receives some part of the School's $275,000 financial aid budget.

The School continues this year with the new curriculum inaugurated successfully last year to give greater flexibility, a wider variety of courses, greater elective choice for the student, and an integration of independent study and off-campus programs.

The year began on September 6 for Lawrenceville with the inauguration at a formal dinner of a new central dining facility, the gift of an anonymous donor. The annual Head Master's dinner for the faculty follows on September 8. Students arrive on September 9 and classes begin on September 11.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

By Girl Scouts. The West Windsor-Plainsboro Girl Scout Association is inviting mothers of present and future girl scouts and brownies to attend its first meeting of the 1972-73 Scouting year on Tuesday evening, September 12, at 8 p.m., in the Princeton Junction Fire House.

Adult volunteers are needed for leader and co-leader openings in the troops. If you are interested in working with young people, contact Mrs. Dolores Shaddow, 448-0215, or Mrs. Dorothy Beard, 799-0509, for more information.

when not for profit. But it is not a permitted use in any residence district. However, the term "multi-family" gives anyone who is interested an opportunity to view what sort of slum results from such governmental benevolence, by looking at this kind of housing as it exists in Trenton. The impression left by such inspection can be dispelled by no amount of verbal testimony.

The interiors of these units do not contain sufficient net floor area as required by the ordinance, except when considered as multi-family houses, and in the case of the four-bedroom units they do not satisfy even this minimal criterion.

Yet in the case of most multi-family houses, the net floor area would not include stairways, stairwells, landing floors and other space used in common by tenants, while in the proposed design what appears to be 10 percent is taken up by such uses.

Even if federal standards are met by this proposal, it is not clear that they are ipso facto good or decent standards, or such that a community of good will would want to impose upon the needy.

Human Brain Damage May Be Lessened by Skillman Research

What causes birth defects of the brain and central nervous system?

Patients at the New Jersey Neuropsychiatric Institute at Skillman are living proof that nobody, yet, really knows.

Autopsies on the brains of 282 mentally defective people have shown that all but eight had visible abnormality. And a pair of research scientists at the Skillman Institute have found that brain defects can come from a specific agent, like a chemical.

This is a discovery of utmost importance. Ten years ago, scientists did not know that a chemical could cause a brain defect.

The Skillman experiments also have an immediate, practical value. They mean that inexpensive experimental animals can now be bred as research tools for deeper probing into the brain.

The scientists are Dr. R. K. Haddad, director, and Dr. Ausma Rabe, assistant director, of the Section on Neuropsychiatry.

SCIENTISTS AND THEIR RESEARCH: Dr. R. K. Haddad and his associate, Dr. Ausma Rabe of the Neuropsychiatric Institute, are doing vital research with brain damaged animals which could lead to a break-through for brain damaged humans. Above are the brains of ferrets from the Haddad-Rabe research. The one on the right is from a mother injected with the chemical MAM during pregnancy. It weighs one-third less than the brain of the normal animal (left). This is the first time the brain size of an animal higher than a rodent (ferrets are carnivores) has been modified, during gestation, by chemical treatment. Drs. Haddad and Rabe hope to learn, in the next few months, how this reduced brain size affects the ferrets' ability to think and learn.

chology and Neuropsychiatry at the Institute. Both live in Princeton.

Their chemical is "MAM" — methylazoxymethanol. Injected into pregnant rats and ferrets, MAM results in litters with small brains — microcephaly.

Ferrets, which normally have brain convolutions, rats don't have, are born with shallow or missing convolutions because of the MAM injections. This malformation had never before been produced in a lab animal until the Haddad-Rabe research.

Significant? Yes. What does this mean for humans? "If you know a pregnant woman has had a certain chemical," Dr. Haddad points out, "you can, perhaps, prevent the brain damage. Although we've tried three different treatments on our animals, none of them worked."

"Also, if you know the brain is defective, you try to improve it, and we've done a little on that line."

What the Institute has done is to provide brain damaged animals with enriched environments. As a rule, lab rats are kept alone in cages. Dr. Haddad and Dr. Rabe have put them in cages with other rats, or alone but with objects to explore and play with.

Even a normal rat performs better in lab tests when he's had an enriched environment and there are even some anatomical changes in his brain.

"The defective animal does indeed profit from an enriched environment," Dr. Haddad states. "In fact, it's hard to tell the difference between the two animals, though you're limited as to how far you can go with the damaged one. And deprivation is worse for the deficient animal than for the normal one."

From Guam. The experiments began about five years ago. They have a curious, almost exotic link back to an ancient plant called a cycad.

Abbott Low Moffat

William T. Sutphin

for Princeton Township Committee

★ ENERGY • KNOW-HOW • DETERMINATION ★

Abbot Low Moffat has already had a distinguished career in government service. A graduate of Harvard University and Columbia Law School, he was a legislative leader of the New York State Assembly for 15 years. He later served as an official in the U. S. State Department and the World Bank. As an established authority on municipal finance and public administration, he was recently chosen to head a group formed to study the impact of state tax reform on Princeton. At present he is a member of the Princeton Township Planning Board and an officer of the Association for the Arts of the New Jersey State Museum.

William T. Sutphin, a partner in a Newark law firm, is a specialist in administrative and land-use law. Following service in the U.S. Army as an artillery officer, he was graduated from Princeton University. A Princeton resident since 1962, he has been active in civic and community affairs. During the past year, for example, he has represented the "Princeton Interveners," the commuter group that is fighting the Penn Central fare boost. As a member of both the Princeton Township and Regional Planning Boards, he participated in the drafting of the Environmental Design Review ordinance.

Ancient, that is, like the ginkgo; a survivor from prehistoric times.

Cycads grow in tropical places, including Guam where natives sometimes grind the nuts into flour. After the war, American public health officials noticed a high incidence of neurological disease on Guam and decided to see whether cycad seeds were the cause.

They brought some back to a National Institute of Health lab where the seed was found to contain MAM, a powerful cancer-producing agent. (The fact that MAM is a carcinogen isn't relevant in the Skillman research.) In the course of using MAM for cancer research, scientists asked, "What would happen to offspring if a pregnant animal were fed MAM?"

A mother rat was fed the chemical, and the rat litter was kept for a year, while scientists watched for signs of tumors. None appeared, so the rats were sacrificed (a lab euphemism for killed).

Autopsies, to the scientists' surprise, showed that all the rats had damaged brains. The researcher in charge, a friend of Dr. Haddad's, asked whether he'd like to pursue the research, and Dr. Haddad eagerly agreed.

Rat Race. In the Haddad-Rabe laboratory, MAM-damaged rats have performed in mazes, one of which was designed to show up damage on one side of the brain only. Many tests can't show damage unless both sides are affected.

"Usual behavior tests often don't reveal any deficiency at all," Dr. Haddad explains "a rat will learn to go left or right, and no abnormality is visible. But he will be poor at reversing if he has a damaged brain and our tests are designed for this."

"Spatial ability seems to be involved," he continues, "and this of course is a primary human ability."

The two researchers found they could control the amount of brain damage by increasing MAM doses to the pregnant rat. Increased dosage meant lighter-weight brains in the offspring — in a regular relationship.

To show brain damage wasn't linked to something in the mother's milk, the scientists transferred newborn rats to another mother. But clearly, the brain damage had been done before birth.

Ferret Intelligence. Ferrets are important because they are smart. They do better in conceptual learning than a rat, or better than a cat, dog or squirrel monkey, for that matter.

"Besides," says Dr. Haddad, "as a practical matter — it's almost impossible to get cats that don't have some kind of infection, and an infection could be the cause of brain damage, so our experiments would be thrown off."

Right now, the lab is evaluating the ferret. Will ferrets, with abnormally shallow convolutions, show a different kind of defectiveness from the rat, which has only the small brain to make the difference? When an animal has an abnormally small brain, he's obviously lacking some key cells. Does this, too, make a difference?

"We suspect this may be involved in learning, and in coordination of sensory and motor patterns," Dr. Haddad says. "We're planning tests to see whether there is a learning deficiency."

Another Test. Newborn, as well as pregnant animals, have been given MAM injections.

"We can duplicate with MAM the damage done by certain viral infections," the doctors say. "And this is important knowledge."

When a newborn litter of kittens is injected, the brain damage is like that found in a common cat disease. MAM also produces effects similar to those produced by radiation, adding to its importance as a research tool.

The More the Better. Anything that could affect growth, Dr. Haddad says, could affect the brain. This was not known a few years ago, he points out.

So, because anti-biotics affect growth (of bacteria), Dr. Haddad gave a very heavy dose of tetracycline, commonly used to treat ailments in children, to newborn hamsters. Although body growth was stunted the brains were not affected.

"So this anti-biotic is safe," he comments, "but all anti-biotics, or anything commonly used medically for the pregnant or newborn, should be tested as a public-health measure."

French Market to Reopen

The French Market will re-open on Friday, September 15, from 8 a.m. to noon, selling seasonal flowers and vegetables, in the small park at Mercer and Stockton Streets.

The market will be open every Friday until frost. Operated by The Garden Club of Princeton since the 1920s, The Market proceeds benefit The Princeton Medical Center. The Princeton Public Library and the traffic island where it is situated. Curb parking is free to customers during Market time.

Next, Dr. Haddad and Dr. Rabe plan to delve into the potato. Two kinds of human brain damage, anencephaly and spina bifida, apparently are caused by potato blight, potato sprouts, or the way potatoes are grown, prepared, stored. In Ireland, 1 percent of all births have one of these defects, research has shown.

"We are now growing potatoes," the doctor says, "we hope to exonerate the potato itself."

BOHEN ASKS DEBATES

With Frelinghuysen. Fred Bohen, Princeton's Democratic candidate for Congress in the new Fifth District, has challenged his incumbent opponent, Congressman Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen of a series of public debates.

Mr. Bohen said in his letter to Mr. Frelinghuysen:

"While you and I may disagree about specific issues, I believe that we are in agreement that the voters are entitled to a public discussion of these issues by the candidates, face to face, to fully explore our positions."

Mr. Bohen, who has resigned from his post at the Ford Foundation to campaign full-time, proposed a series of five or six joint, weekly discussions in various parts of the district.

FIRST MEETING SET

For Newcomer's Club. The Newcomers' Club of Princeton will hold its first meeting of the fall season on Thursday, September 14, at 12:30 p.m. at the YWCA. The club welcomes new members; anyone who has lived in the Princeton area for less than two years.

The club aims at helping newcomers make the transition to life in a new community by providing an informative general meeting and social hour each month. A variety of special activities are also offered by Newcomers'.

These include gourmet cooking, fine arts, book review, town and country tours, crafts, oil painting, luncheon out, decorating and gardening, Princeton history and bridge.

The initial meeting will include a social hour honoring new members and guests and a program explaining the club's organization and activities. A supervised, fully equipped nursery is available for a small fee for children aged one to five. Reservations for child care must be arranged in advance — this can be done by telephoning 924-4074.

Other activities planned for the month of September include a gourmet club picnic, an historical tour of Princeton and a riverboat tour in New Hope with luncheon out.

Future activities include a dinner dance, theater trips, progressive dinner, a tour of Morven, a day at the races and many other events. For further information call 799-1464.

ADULT SCHOOL SET

In Hopewell Valley. Brochures for the Fall Term of the Hopewell Valley Community Adult School have been mailed to area residents.

Sponsored by the Regional Board of Education, this 10-week program is open to residents of all surrounding communities. Classes are held at the Central High School in Pennington. The term begins on September 25.

Director of the Adult School, G. Randle Ackerman, has announced that evening registration will be held at Central High School on Monday, September 18 and Tuesday, September 19 from 8 to 9 p.m. Students may register in person at the Adult School Office, located at 425 South Main Street, Pennington, from 12 to 4 p.m. daily, or by mail to the Director.

Free tuition is offered to District residents 65 years of age or over. District High School students who are juniors or seniors may enroll in educational courses with the approval of the Director and written parental permission.

A full and varied program is being offered. In addition to the many popular Fall courses normally sponsored such as tennis, crafts and decorations, dog obedience training, the usual business courses, woodworking, swimming for women, a number of courses which are being offered for the first time include a new art course, teacher aid training, sailing, Italian I, creative dramatics, stitchery techniques, flower arranging, and a yoga course, and those wishing further information regarding Adult School courses are asked to call the Director at 737-1511 weekdays between 12 and 4.

YES OFFICE TO REOPEN

Teens Urged to Register. The Youth Employment Service will reopen this Monday, and will be open each week-day afternoon for the winter season.

Young people between the ages of 14 and 20 years of age who live in or go to school in Princeton are encouraged to register at the office if they are seeking part or full time work. The office is in Dorothea House at 120 John Street.

Prospective employers who need help that teenagers can provide are urged to phone the YES Office at 924-5844 and referrals will be arranged.

During the summer months, YES acted on almost 200 job orders, many of which involved work for more than one young person. The student summer worker has returned to school and the office must be operated entirely by volunteers for the winter months.

More are needed to work in the office for approximately two hours weekly. Anyone who would like to help may contact Mrs. Frank Sniemakers thru the YES Office.

REFLECTIONS OF CHANGE
At the Stuart School. There are obvious and subtle signs of these changing times at the Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart.

Sister Judith Garson

"Sometimes an older religious will say, 'This isn't the order I entered,'" comments Sister Marie-Louise Carmody, guidance director and a founding member of the school. "And indeed it isn't. Neither is the world she entered from."

Stuart opened in 1963 with 45 pupils taught by cloistered nuns. Today, nearly 350 begin classes September 13 — with nuns in secular dress, a faculty liberally peppered with lay teachers (including five men), coed classes up through second grade, a trimester system, mini courses, an independent study program for seniors, wide-ranging community service projects, and multi-level classrooms for certain grades.

About a third of the students are not Roman Catholics. In recognition of this, the school has an elective program in religion ranging from Biblical studies and Catholic studies to "Awareness" and "Religion and Contemporary Intellectual Currents."

Creative acceptance of change, working to set students "ever more responsibly free," has led to nine lively years at the school. For an order with a tradition of academic excellence they have been exciting years, meeting challenge from all sides.

Sister Carmody — nuns of the order are no longer called "Mother" — wears a large cross held by a long chain at her neck as the only remaining symbol of her austere calling.

back today, I feel she would be surprised to find us in the old habit, which we wore for about 164 years."

She continues, "The cloister no longer exists for us. We are now able to get out and do more, to go home to visit people, to go where other people go — and meet them on very different terms."

"We had so many rules, such as silence within the cloister where we spoke only when necessary and with the fewest possible words — in certain places and in a subdued voice. That was supposed to support and encourage reflection, that constant effort to live in the presence of God."

"Today the emphasis is more to recognize that God resides in others. This we always knew, but the stress was more on what we used to call the 'interior,' the contemplative life. It was, and still is, a very beautiful life. Today our lifestyle is more outgoing in love and service. Maybe, in very broad terms, I could say the emphasis has shifted from the mystical to the apostolic life."

"It was difficult for us to go into 'contemporary' clothes," she says smilingly. "There was criticism. But it has been generally accepted. You know, if St. Madeleine Sophie who founded this order in 1809 and adopted the garb of the Burgundian widow were to come for political parties and includes a specially-arranged trip to talk to Congressmen in Washington. Mrs. Sigmund also teaches the wide-ranging "Marriage and the Family" course required in the junior or senior year.

Last year a new series of enrichment opportunities were offered in courses that ranged from two days to 13 weeks: anthropology, Japanese brush painting, art history, genetics, humanistic psychology, "women in crisis." The English program was individualized through a "Resource Center period."

This year, the science department will have trimester courses in vertebrate anatomy, animal behavior, and "field and aquatic ecology." Mrs. Ruth Kolman of the science department holds an Eagleton Institute grant which she will use to develop a science curriculum designed to educate students to make public policy decisions that involve a knowledge of scientific discoveries.

And in mathematics, some single trimester courses are developing: introducing students to statistics and probability, to modern analytic geometry, and more.

Middle schoolers will find their work revolves around a new core program this year. The successful coeducational unit for kindergarten through grade 2 will be held again. It is modeled on the British Infant School, an open school or open corridor plan. Children ages 5 to 7 were involved. Youngsters in grades 3, 4, and 5 were introduced to the system of electives, given trimester choices in eight subjects, which they pursued in multi-age groupings.

The Stuart School will welcome Sister Judith Garson from the Norton School, as assistant headmistress for curriculum development. Sister Mary Bush is headmistress.

Sister Joan Gannon, a founding member of the school, returns from the school at Portmouth, bringing three religious with her. Sister Mary Jane Sullivan is director of the upper school students; Sister Mary Elizabeth Carr is Middle School head, and Sister Irene Good, Lower School head.

APPOINTMENT MADE
By Stuart School. Sister Mary Bush, Headmistress of Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, has announced the appointment of Sister Judith Garson as assistant headmistress for curriculum development.

Sister Garson was born and educated in New York City and entered the Society of the Sacred Heart in 1958. She holds a B.A. in Russian and an M.A. in English and Education from Manhattanville College and another M.A. in Slavic languages and literature from Columbia University.

She spent the summer of '69 traveling through the U.S.S.R. on a travel fellowship from Columbia and continued her doctoral studies on her return while teaching Russian language and literature at Manhattanville.

Sister Garson returned to secondary school teaching in 1970 at Norton Academy and comes to Princeton from that Connecticut school.

CYCLING TOUR PLANNED

By Century Road Club. Two area bicycle riders, Roger and Priscilla Maren, will lead an easy cycling tour of some of the more scenic roads in the Princeton area this Saturday.

The tour will be conducted so that all ages and abilities can be accommodated and is designed as an introduction to the pleasures and challenges of cycling.

The husband and wife team are long-time residents of the area and experienced cyclists. The ride will depart at 10 Saturday morning from the front of Kopp's Cycle Shop, 14 John Street.

The excursion is held under the auspices of the Century

Dede Nini, PHS '50, Is Now Princeton '74

To keep the peace while she recently discussed with her professor her study plans when she enters Princeton this fall, Dede Nini hit on a new twist to an old play — she gave her younger son a quarter and sent him to the local ice cream parlor.

Born and raised here in Princeton, the mother of three (the oldest is 15) will enter the University this September as a junior in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, where she plans to concentrate on urban studies. She is transferring from nearby Mercer County Community College, where she graduated this past June with high honors.

For both the University and for Mrs. Nini, things have come a long way from the days when Dede DiDonato was attending the Nassau Street public school, smelling "those big yellow chrysanthemums" on Football Saturdays, and her father, a local nurseryman, was causing sputterings from University administrators for his outspoken views on Italian socialism.

"I feel excited and stimulated — and also scared," she said about being one of the more than 300 women entering Princeton this month (bringing to about a thousand the number of women in the undergraduate body.) "I know it's going to be a lot of work — I have nothing but pity for my family when I have an exam!"

Straight A's at MCC. If her work at Mercer County Community College is any judge, however, she should be able to meet the Princeton challenge. She is shy about her performance at MCC; news of her straight A average there has to be elicited from her children and from newspaper clippings.

She spent some five years at the local community college, commuting from her home on Littlebrook Road in Princeton Township to the college's downtown Trenton branch. She began with one course a year, then expanded it to two, as she was able to fit in the management of three children, a husband, and an 11-room house around her academic schedule.

One way to do so, she found, was by getting up at 5 a.m., thus giving herself two hours of uninterrupted study time before the rest of the family arose at 7.

Her husband, Sam, is the owner of S. E. Nini, Inc., plumbing and heating firm (his brother, Joseph R. Nini, the Township administrator, was Class of '47 at the University). The two younger Nini children — Heidi, 14, and Mitchell, 8 (he was bought off with the ice cream) — attend Princeton public schools, while 15-year-old Kevin enters New Hampton School in New Hampshire this fall.

Her father, Clarence DiDonato, has long combined his love of growing things with a fiery devotion to politics of the left — an enthusiasm that, in the sleepy isolationism of pre-World War II Princeton, at times brought him into conflict with University authorities.

On one occasion in the early 1930's, a visiting delegation of Italian students came to Princeton and, while in Nassau Hall, began to sing the anthem of Mussolini's fascists. There to protest was Mr. DiDonato who, jumping up against the Nassau Hall portrait of George Washington, loudly proclaimed: "Down with Mussolini!" and "Viva Garibaldi!"

He was hustled off quickly by University proctors. (His politics have apparently mellowed little with the years; last spring, at age 72, he was one of a number of war protesters arrested at demonstrations at the Institute for Defense Analyses).

Why Princeton? Why Princeton for Dede Nini? The answer is not quite, "Because it's there," but for a girl and young woman growing up in this town, there may be some of that. When she graduated from Princeton High School in 1950, the all-male University up on the hill was, of course, out of consideration. "I remember that when I was young I was sort of in awe of the University."

Following her graduation from high school, she attended secretarial school, and worked for a time at RCA Laboratories here in town. Her desire for further education remained, however, and after her first two children were born, she enrolled at Rutgers and attended night school there.

Finally, after Mitchell's birth, she began the studies at Mercer County Community College which led to her present role as Princeton coed, when a faculty member there encouraged her to try for admission in her home town university.

In the Woodrow Wilson School, where she'll be working this year with Assistant Professor of Economics Daniel S. Hamermesh, she plans to specialize in urban affairs. She would like, if possible, to be able to do some sort of off-campus project, perhaps something like "Semester-in-the-Cities," in Trenton. (That project, offered through Princeton's Urban Studies program, sends a small number of juniors each year to work in an urban center for a term.)

Impressed with Students. She has been very impressed so far with today's Princeton student, having come into contact with a number of prospective classmates through her endeavors on the local political scene, in which she has played a very active role (she will be a McGovern organizer in the coming campaign).

"All of the students I've talked with welcomed the idea of someone like me going back to school. I don't know if I would have been that receptive to such an idea when I was their age — maybe there's less of a generation gap now than there was then."

In particular, she cited the case of one student "who spent almost a whole day — a Saturday — going over his term papers with me, showing me the kind of work I might expect to find at Princeton. I really think that's pretty unusual for him to be willing to spend a Saturday afternoon trying to convince an 'older woman' to go to Princeton."

The prospects of the social life of a Princeton coed don't bother her. The Nini home has always been open to University students, and will continue to be so. She and her husband have been watching Tiger football on autumn Saturdays for a number of years, and plan to continue "with all the children." "And I want you to know that I already have two invitations to House parties — if Sam is tied up — and one girl who is ready to be my 'Big Sister.'"

VARIED PROGRAM SET

For YWCA This Fall. The YWCA fall program offers a larger choice than ever to the woman who wants to trim down, keep in shape, or build up her strength and endurance.

Swedish gymnastics, modern dance and ballet, a variety of gymnastics classes and many more physical education programs are given during the day, when babysitting is available, and in the evening.

Other courses offered are hand smocking taught by Marie-Noel Laurent who learned the art in her native France; water-color painting taught in a studio-type class by Dagmar Tribble, well-known artist and president of the New Jersey Watercolor Association.

A special class devoted to making holiday ornaments from many countries, using unusual techniques, will be given by Tema Hinson. Some popular programs will be back this fall, including beginning and advanced sewing, typing, guitar and recorder, bread baking, French, and first aid.

Junior and Senior High girls will be interested in the programs given especially for them, ranging from car care to fiber sculpture, and from the gymnastics club to a weekly quilting bee on Saturday morning.

Many different gymnastics and development classes are available to toddlers and kindergarten children. The staff of the YWCA Physical Education department is very much interested in early childhood training. Mother-Toddler swimming, pre-ballet and kine-kin dergarten all are programs in this area.

The YWCA brochure gives full details of all classes and activities. Registration will be held Monday 9 to 8:30 and Tuesday 9 to 4.

FLIGHT TWO TO MARCH

New Jersey Fair Week.

The youth group is assembling flags of various nations and will form a complement to the parade which will be held this Sunday and will get underway at the fair at 1 p.m.

Flight II is directed by Barry Peterson; Mark Novak is coordinating the assembly.
The group may carry as many as 60 flags representing coun-

The significance of this dis-well as compete in the parade.

Currently the national twirling champions, the North Brunswick Starlettes will get the pro-followed by the parade which will include The Antonian Band from St. Anthony High School,

The Sacred Heart Crusaders

The musical groups represent cities in New Jersey and a special presentation will be performed by the Riptides Drum and Bugle Corps from Long Island. All of these groups have won championship honors in competitive events over the recent past years.

Veterans organizations from Mercer County are coordinating this event in cooperation with the F & M Schaefer Brewing Company. Some 2,000 marchers are expected to traverse the racing track at the N. J. Fairgrounds.

Included in the line of march will be representation from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, Catholic War
Veterans, Disabled American Veterans, Italian American War Veterans, Polish American War Veterans, World War I
Veterans, the Marine Corps League, and the Forty and Eight The Ladies Auxiliaries of these organizations will compose a lead unit of the parade.

Veterans in the area may secure free admission and parking tickets for this program by writing to the Veterans Day, N.J. Fair, P.O. Box and, Trenton, 08601. The public is reminded that no admission is charged for this event which will provide seating for 20,000 spectators in the grandstands.
Serving as Grand Marshall of the Parade is Michael D. De-

Affairs for Mercer County.

OPEN HOUSE PLANNED

By Adult School, The Princeton Adult School which starts on September 26 is holding its Open House two weeks in advance of the first classes on Thursday, September 14 to enable people to have more time to register by mail and in person before classes are closed or dropped at the end for insufficient time.

To get the class of your choice it is suggested that you see a brochure or write for one to the school at Box No.
101 Princeton immediately.

You may also call the school office between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at 924-6990. A complete list of classes and a registration form appear on pages 22 and 23 of this issue.

The culinary area of the school will once again offer three different types of food preparation: Mrs. Yung-chi Chen, Chinese cooking on Tuesday; Nelson Dimas will once again offer a class in French cooking which is the follow up to the course he taught last year. It is for those who wish to go beyond omelettes, casseroles and soups into the realm of what is now called the
"haute cuisine" of France.

Printed recipes will be distributed in addition to lists with the names of the best wines, restaurants, and gourmet supply stores both in the U.S. and France. The student will help the teacher in every step and their active participation in the preparation of dishes under the supervision of the teacher is the essence and heart of the course.

In the 5 to 7 slot on Tuesdays Michael Dorn will conduct a class in Haute Cuisine for Health Nuts. His premise is that nutritionists being interested in the purity of food often ignore altogether glamour, delicacy, and appeal—with the result that the majority of so-called health foods are really appalling to people with sensitive palates. And the gourmets are so often intent on appearance that they needlessly neglect nutrition and abandon any attempt at weight control.

Mr. Dorn feels this is a successor to his Gourmet Globe Travellers course he gave last term and rather than being of mere entertainment value will be a force for preserving health, prolonging life and making daily meals refreshing and exciting. Mr. Dorn is an editor and has written extensively on the preparation of food.

Professor Robert Wickenheiser of Princeton University will give a course in Modern Masters of Short Fiction. The course will examine six modern world writers who have contributed substantially to the development of short story.

YWCA PLANS PROGRAM

The After School Care, The After School Care program at the YWCA and YMCA has been well received by parents as well as educators. The program is aimed at children whose parents are working and from families in stress situations.

Recognizing the need of these children, the YWCA ran a pilot program in the spring to gain some insight into the type of care needed.

As a result, a well-planned program, under experienced leadership is being set up for the fall. The YWCA is operating so as to provide an opportunity for boys to join, and is making its facilities available to the program.

Mrs. Rae Ann Roeder will be coordinator/teacher of the program, assisted by the YWCA Child Care Committee. Mrs. Roeder is a graduate of Rider College and has a master's degree in secondary education from East Tennessee State University.

She took this degree while working in the Teachers Corps in East Tennessee. During her stay in the Teacher Corps she organized an after-school study center, worked with community action projects, and together with other corps members designed better teaching methods and materials for students in the area.

Later, teaching eighth grade social studies at a junior high school in Kentucky she was adviser of the student government and supervised school plays and talent shows.

The after-school care program at the YWCA-YMCA is held from Monday through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. on Wednesday. A fee of slightly less than a dollar an hour will be charged, and more children from one family will pay half the fee.

Scholarships will be available. The program is restricted to children whose parents are working and preference is given to those who need this program five days a week. Registration started September 5 at the YWCA, Avalon Place. For information call 924-4825, ext. 26.

FREE EYE EXAM SET

At Medical Center, A free eye health screening program offered annually as a public service by the Medical Society of New Jersey and other participating groups will be held in the Princeton Medical Center's outpatient clinic on Monday evening, September 11, from 6 to 9.

Dr. E. Frederick Lasechever, the Medical Center's Chief of Ophthalmology, states that the screening program is open to all individuals over the age of thirty-five not already receiving ophthalmological care.

Purpose of the screening is to detect evidence of any eye disease, or of any general disease reflected in the eyes, which should have treatment or follow up by a physician.

In addition to the Medical Society and its Woman's Auxiliary, other sponsors of the screening program include the New Jersey Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, the New Jersey State Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired, the State Department of Health, the New Jersey Hospital Association and the Lions Clubs of New Jersey.

$1 Million in Crop Losses Laid to Air Pollution

Air pollution in the Garden State cost $1,183,000 in direct crop losses alone last year. The figure is the first reliable estimate to be developed for outdoor and greenhouse crop losses in New Jersey, and one of the first in the nation. It is the result of a detailed Rutgers University field study from April to April, 1971 to 1972.

The survey was conducted by Dr. Alberto N. Feliciano, extension specialist in the Department of Plant Biology, Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, with the assistance of the Cooperative Extension Service's network of county agents throughout the state.

"We hope the study will provide data for legislators and other decision makers concerned with air pollution problems," Dr. Feliciano says. "We know it's going to be expensive to clean up air pollution, so it's important to know some of the costs of not doing so. Crop losses are one of them."

Damage Is Serious. Damage was known to be serious — bad enough to drive some farmers out of business, he continues. But there hadn't been any systematic survey of the extent of the loss.

Causing 10 percent of the damage were the photochemical pollutants, PAN and ozone, Dr. Feliciano reports. These pollutants are produced when ultraviolet light and hydrocarbons from factory and automobile emissions react in the presence of sunlight.

Most heavily hit was Cumberland County, which suffered losses of $347,265, or more than a quarter of the state's total. Other counties where damages exceeded $100,000 were Burlington, Atlantic, and Salem.

Lettuce was the single crop that suffered the most, Dr. Feliciano found, amounting for $185,425 of the losses.

Vegetable crops as a whole showed losses of $500,000, or slightly over half the total. Damage to field crops was $130,215. Grapes, nursery plants, and cut flowers — especially important from late winter into the spring — accounted for the rest.

Economic damage to forest trees and ornamentals was not included in the survey. Neither were indirect losses, such as costs to growers forced to relocate, or the loss in land value.

AIR POLLUTION VICTIM: Looking for symptoms of air pollution damage to greenhouse chrysanthemums is Rutgers plant pathologist Dr. Alberto N. Feliciano, Department of Plant Biology, College of Agriculture and Environmental Science. He finds dirty air costs more than $1,000,000 in New Jersey crop losses alone.

Previously, there's been no lack of estimates of crop losses due to air pollution. But the figures have been questionable.

Recent estimates have ranged all the way from $130 million to $500 million nationally; sometimes, a damage figure has simply been assigned, based on pollution levels and the effects they would be expected to have on crops growing in the area.

Field Observation. Dr. Feliciano, a 41-year-old plant pathologist who came to Rutgers from the Philippines, points out that his figures are still an estimate. But they are based on extensive field observation to pin down actual damage.

To gather the New Jersey data, Dr. Feliciano and the county agents working with him personally investigated and documented 315 incidences of air pollution during the year.

"It's easy for most people to mistake air pollution damage for other plant maladies, and vice versa," Dr. Feliciano points out. "That's why we needed on-the-spot examinations to verify what was caused by air pollution and what wasn't."

Air pollution damage occurs in fits and starts, often depending on the weather, he says. So meteorologists at the college alerted Dr. Feliciano whenever the weather situation in a particular area made it likely that surface air, and pollutants along with it, would be trapped near the ground, thus endangering crops. Then, Dr. Feliciano, with a county agent in the area, would go out and have a look.

Bronze Lettuce. Turning the visible damage to plants — the bronzing on the underside of a lettuce leaf, or the white flecks on a tomato plant — into dollar figures was one of the toughest parts of the study.

"Once in awhile, if a crop that's ready for harvest is really wiped out by air pollution, it's easy to figure out the loss," he explains. "But in most cases, it's a matter of partial loss. We evaluated the percent of damage, and checked back with the farmer whenever possible to compare the crop he actually harvested with his previous yield figures."

County agents also enlisted the aid of farmers in reporting suspected air pollution damage. To help them recognize the symptoms, "air pollution gardens" with typically damaged plants were maintained in 15 major agricultural areas. Dr. Feliciano is repeating the survey this year to determine what effect newly-introduced air pollution control devices and tighter regulation may be having in reducing these losses.

The study is based on research conducted over the past 20 years in the Rutgers Department of Plant Biology, which has pioneered in air pollution-plant damage studies. The completed 1971-72 study, funded by the Environmental Protection Agency and the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, will be published soon.

Do you know how many major college football teams in the last 40 years have been able to go through a season unbeaten, untied and UNSCORED ON? . . . Only three teams have done it in all this time . . . They were Colgate in 1932, Duke in 1938 and Tennessee in 1939, and no team has been able to do it since then.

Here's an oddity . . . Football is always referred to as the "pigskin sport," and the football itself is often called the "pigskin"—but, did you know that footballs aren't made from pigskin anymore! . . . Most footballs today are made from cowhide.

Which are the largest football stadiums in America? . . . Well, there are only three which can seat more than 100,000 people . . . Can you name all three? . . . They are the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. . . . The University of Michigan Stadium in Ann Arbor, Mich. . . . and, Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia where the Army-Navy game is played.

I bet you didn't know . . . most private surgical insurance plans won't pay the entire cost of a compound fracture. Student accident insurance is a good bet.

For Little Tiger Eleven, Nowhere to Go But Up

(This is the first of three articles on Princeton High School's football prospects for 1972.)

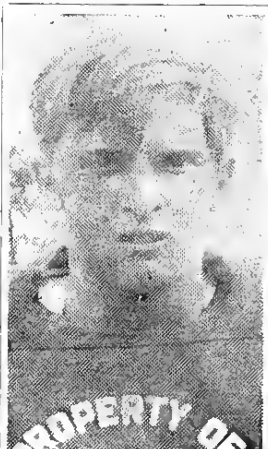

To say that the Princeton High School football team this season has to rise from its own ashes like the mythical Phoenix is to be guilty of being melodramatic—but only by the smallest of margins. The ashes of the 1971 season, the grimmest in memory, are everywhere. There was the failure of the Little Tigers to win a single game, marking the first time a PHS eleven has ever been shutout.

The 0-8 record was a reflection of a team torn apart by dissension. Part of the dissension was racial. By the final two games of the season, the entire varsity squad consisted of just over 30 players.

Later, the coaches revolted over the question of discipline and the right to dismiss a player from the squad. They fought for and regained a degree of control they felt they could live with but not before the parents, community, school administration and school board were involved in a series of heated debates.

The coaching staff that has never reached eight, the number that head coach Dick Wood feels he needs, was weakened by the loss of two members: William Cirullo, who had figured prominently in the dissension between the players and coaches, decided for personal reasons not to coach this year.

Leonard Weister was not

rehired by the school board. Wood as yet has not had an opportunity to work in any detail with their successors, Geoff Hill from South Carolina and Donald Cartwright from North Carolina.

It was, in short, a searing time for football last year. To this, Wood suffered another setback when one of his tri-captains for this season, Ron Scott, who figured prominently in his plans as quarterback, decided to attend Lawrenceville School. In addition, Wood has announced that he intends to scrap completely the single wing offense that has been the benchmark of the Little Tigers since the beginning.

Also jettisoned is the multiple offense that Wood used in tandem with the single wing. In their place he plans to install an entire new offense. "It's going to mean an awful lot of work; it's going to be tough in the beginning," he agreed.

No Psychological Carryover. Asked if he thought that the team in the school's history. It was the promise of help from this sophomore squad that was one of the main reasons why Wood refused to cave in to mounting pressures last year and go out as a loser.

A second potential big plus is the new formation upon which Wood and his chief assistant Jim Beachell are obviously pinning much of their hope for a comeback. "It isn't something we have stuck in overnight," said Wood. "It is something we have thought about for at least two years."

Why did Wood give up on the single wing which had been a tradition in Princeton until Jake McCandless scrapped it three years ago when he took over at Princeton University?

Better Suited To Players: There was no play option pass, Wood reported, "and I didn't think I was getting the blocking on the weak side that I was in previous years." He added that he thought the new formation was better suited to the type of personnel that had been coming out for the sport in recent years.

As for the new formation itself, Wood is, understandably, playing it close to the vest. He did allow that it would be a completely balanced T with the fullback lining up directly behind the quarterback. There will be no variations.

There will be a premium placed on blocking and passing. No, the lack of variation in the formation did not mean last year's humiliating record might have some psychological carryover and affect the attitude of this year's squad. Wood replied that he didn't think so. "I haven't met formally with them yet," he said, "but I get the impression from talking to a few that the kids want to prove they can do a lot better this year."

"There's only two things we can do," he quipped. "Stay the same or get better. We can't do any worse."

Staying the same is unthinkable, and despite all the minuses, Wood has a couple of pluses to insure that it won't happen again. First he has more to choose from. One of the problems with the 1971 team was that it had one of the smallest senior squads in years. "It started out small and it got smaller as the years went on," Wood said.

This time, Wood will greet 28 seniors and 24 juniors. The latter are from a sophomore squad that was undefeated last fall in seven games; the first undefeated sophomore there would be a lack of deception. "We can score from any position on the field," said Wood cryptically.

"In fact, I'm not even going to worry about first downs; we're going for the touchdown on every play."

"It looks great on paper," Wood smiled, but he agreed a lot could be lost in the translation to the field. "We'll have no easy time of it. There are a lot of questions: How quickly will the kids learn it? How will it turn out? But we feel we have to take the chance."

To lessen the complexity of learning new blocking and ball handling assignments, Wood and Beachell hope to be able to platoon the team into complete separate offensive and defensive units. "I think we have the personnel and it will fit in better with the new offensive," Wood commented.

Following, then, is a rundown on the backfield candidates. Next week Town Topics will review the offensive line and defense and in a concluding article discuss the schedule and outlook for the current season. The season opens September 23 at Hamilton.

Halfbacks: Experienced candidates are Craig Carlton, Tom Hoffesang and Bob Zinsmeister. Carlton, a sprinter on the track team, has a fast start and ran well, Wood said, from the T last year.

Hoffesang, a wingback last year, is the smallest of three but a good pass receiver. "He works hard; he's always in good condition," commented Wood.

Zinsmeister has lettered in wrestling and baseball, the latter as a freshman, and, says Wood, is a naturally good athlete. "probably the most talent of anybody." He was one of three sophomores on last year's squad.

Both seniors, Carlton and Hoffesang are two of 12 returning lettermen.

Juniors vying for halfback are William Albert, George Boss, Ron Campbell and Kevin Scudler—all players on the undefeated sophomore team.

Campbell, reports Woods, has good speed, is a good blocker and good pass receiver "and you need all three in that position." Scudler is a good ball carrier but only fair blocker.

Albert, a lineman last year and not a very big one, has been moved to halfback because of his speed. Boss was a fullback in the single wing last year.

"I think we have enough to do a good job," summed up Wood.

Fullbacks: Two candidates really. Bob Welscheker and George Reynolds, although Wood may have to turn to junior Jack Bayer if either of the above get injured. Bayer is scheduled to perform on the defensive squad.

Welscheker, 6-0, 185, lettered in the position last year. In the new formation, the fullback has to block and Wood predicts that Welscheker "will fill the bill all year if he holds up."

Reynolds is another stand out on that sophomore team where he did a lot of blocking as a quarterback and wingback. "He's a very good blocker and should fit well into fullback this year," Wood said.

Quarterbacks: Wood had planned to go with Scott and Greg Kline for this key position. With the loss of Scott to Lawrenceville, Wood will turn over closer attention to senior Rob MacDougall, junior John Mooney and possibly Mike Diamond.

Kline's big liability is his size — 5-6, 136 on the chart last year and Wood reports he hasn't gotten much bigger. But despite his small stature, Kline was remarkably durable last season. "He's tough and can throw the ball," Wood remarked.

The problem, as Wood sees it, will be the quarterback's ability to "read" the opposing defense. However, under the new formation a quarterback does not have to read the entire defense, only a segment so Wood feels that "hopefully, it won't prove to be too difficult."

Kline, a right hander, could be complemented by Mooney, a southpaw, who can also throw the ball. Wood observed that the maturity Mooney gained as a starting pitcher for the baseball team should help him in football and said that he has high hopes for him. "He should do well."

MacDougall, heavier than either Kline or Mooney, came to PHS last year from Lawrenceville but was ineligible. Wood promised that MacDougall, a senior, would get a good shot at it.

As a halfback and fullback on the sophomore team, Diamond did not have much opportunity to pass, but Wood said that his sophomore coaches tell him they think Diamond can do the job.

In an overall assessment of the backfield Wood sees quarterback as a question mark because of inexperience with the new formation. "I'm going to spend a lot of extra time with them; practice is what's going to do it."

As for the halfbacks and fullbacks — "they've got it, no question about that."

THE ICEMEN COMETH
Teague and Hinds in the Princeton Adult Softball League, nicknamed the Icemen, were anything but cold in the playoffs.

After disposing of Ivy Inn, winner of regular season play with a 14-2 average, in two straight games, Teague's took on Conte's Bar in the final five-game playoff for the league championship. The result was the same: Teague's won it, three games to none. The Icemen are the defending league champions.

The third and final game went 11 innings. Conte's had scored one run in the 11th on hits by Jack Roberts, Frank Cawley and George Cirullo. It's lead was short lived.

With one swipe of the bat, Cap Crossland, who batted .600 in the series, hit a two run homer to send the Barmen home and start thinking about next year. Scoring ahead of Crossland was George McVaughn who had led off the inning with a double. Final score, Teague's 6, Conte's 5.

The second game, a 2-1 victory for the Icemen, saw all three runs scored in the first three innings. Crossland drove in Bucky Melvin in the first inning for one run and Teague's added what was to be the winning run in the second on hits by Al Matlock, Fran Brooks and Ray Cranston. Conte's lone tally came in the third off hits by Thom Yoder, Roberts and Cawley.

In the first game, Teague's scored five runs in the sixth frame to overcome a 3-1 Conte lead. The victors combined hits by Dan Alleyne, George Tucker, McVaughn and Matlock with an error for their game-winning rally.

Teague's outlived Conte's in the series, .373 to .304, but it was their defense as much as anything that won it for them. The veteran Teague defense was virtually flawless in all three games.

Joining Crossland in batting .600 for the series was Ray Cranston, former PHS player. McVaughn hit at an even .500 clip. For Conte's, Roberts was the lone player to bat over .500.

Teague's, which also defeated the same Conte team in last year's final-round playoffs, ended the season with an overall mark of 15-6. Conte's dropped to 13-9 overall.

Giants Top Eagles, 27-12; Crowd Smallest to See Series Here

The New York Giants' struggle to regain a measure of respectability in the National Football League moved another step forward in Palmer Stadium Saturday as they convincingly defeated the Philadelphia Eagles, 27 to 12. While the Giants' fully deserve a measure of credit for playing their last three exhibition games without a loss, after having dropped their previous nine in a row, it was obvious that the Eagles are one of the weakest teams entered in the 1972 Super Bowl chase.

As has invariably been the story in this Jaycee "classic" in recent years, the afternoon was full of mistakes that could have been avoided had the contestants been doing more than merely going through the motions. Of the 39 points scored during the afternoon, a vast majority were made possible by errors committed by the team with the ball.

The first quarter was no more than five minutes old when Eagle quarterback Pete Liske suffered his first interception, the Giants' defensive tackle, John Mendenhall, battling the ball high in the air and end Henry Reed grabbing it on the Philadelphia 18. Four plays later, Norm Snead, the one-time Eagle field general, had the New Yorkers on the board as Charlie Evans bucked over from the 1 for a touchdown.

A misplay by Snead then made a quick five points available to the Eagles. Lobbing a lateral to Ron Johnson in the right flat, he threw well behind him and with two players from each team trying to recover the bounding ball, it was finally batted out of bounds in the end zone by Johnson. The safety was worth two points, a free kick followed and Philadelphia shortly added a field goal by Tom Dempsey from the 42.

Giants Take Charge. Fortunately for Giant fans, always in the majority in Palmer Stadium, the New Yorkers backed off from the game of give-away and gradually took charge. Following the Eagles' kickoff, they moved to the Philadelphia 16, Pete Gogolak booting a 23-yard field goal.

A couple of minutes later, defensive back Pat Gibbs of the Eagles dropped a twisting punt from Tom Blanchard on the losers' 14-yard line. The Giants recovered and Snead got them their second TD in three plays, Johnson slicing through right guard from two yards out.

The Eagles matched this effort with their only touchdown of the game by beating the first-half clock with an 81-yard drive that clearly over-matched the Giant defense. All but one of the ten plays was a pass, Liske completing half of them. The score came on a 14-yard toss that Ben Hawkins speared deep in the end zone to make it 17-12 at the intermission.

A 22-yard field goal by Gogolak midway through the third period and a 70-yard march for a Giant touchdown in the closing minutes of the game were the only highlights of the second half. Reserve backs Rocky Thompson and Vince Clements ran well in this series, Clements covering the final yard for the TD. The Eagles could do nothing in the second half, totalling a mere 34 yards on offense as Liske made only two of the ten passes he tried, finishing the day with a mark of 12 for 30. The outcome left the Giants on the short end of a 6-5 margin in the series here, but at least they have the knowledge that they are moving upward. The Eagles face apparent disaster this year.

These two teams will meet again in Veterans Stadium, Philadelphia, the night of Monday, October 16, on national television. Unless the calibre of play improves markedly, Howard Cusell will have to share the award for most mistakes made in a single evening.

Snead Sets Unique Record

In directing the New York Giants to a 27-12 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Saturday, Norm Snead was credited with an unusual record. The 32-year old NFL veteran is now the only quarterback ever to win for both sides in games played in Palmer Stadium.

Snead engineered the Eagles' first triumph in 1965, after three straight Giants triumphs, and repeated a year later in the most dramatic game of the rivalry. His 40-yard scoring pass to Ben Hawkins with just over a minute to go gave Philadelphia a 24-23 victory.

Traded by the Eagles to Minnesota, Snead came to the Giants this year when they unloaded Fran Tarkenton. He will serve as the replacement for Randy Johnson, recovering from a shoulder injury.

Jaycee Management of Game Faulty

With more than 9,000 seats unoccupied in Palmer Stadium Saturday, there were strong indications that the Jaycees must sharply revise their management of Giant-Eagle games here if this worthwhile charitable enterprise is to continue.

This year's top price of $9 (with $5 asked for seats offering considerably less than full enjoyment of a game) is totally unrealistic. Not only are there numerous other athletic attractions on television but the fortunes of the two competing teams have been at a low ebb for several years and seem destined to remain there.

Jaycee efforts to publicize the game are not only minimal, but requests for stories and pictures in advance of the game go unanswered. Operation of the press box while the game is in progress has deteriorated so thoroughly that a complete overhaul is essential if the series continues.

Summaries of past games are inaccurate, gaps occur in the play-by-play accounts, the statistics are incorrect, and the p.m. announcer replaces diagnosis of the more complex plays with total silence.

On the field, pre-game and half-time ceremonies are far too long. The 2 p.m. kickoff was delayed for more than 10 minutes, and the game was not over until nearly three hours after most fans had arrived.

The 12th game in this series has reportedly already been contested for in 1973. If Jaycee management is unable to reverse the present trend, public appeal will ebb away so rapidly that lack of interest will bring the series to an end.

Rebuilding Tiger Offense Must Anticipate Frequent Growing Pains

Even before Princeton's football team left for its Blairstown training camp last week, numerous position switches had been effected in an effort to insert some teeth in the 1972 Tigers. The rebuilding problem is greatly complicated by the fact that the experienced defense will frequently be overmatched, and if the Orange and Black is to stay in any ball game, it must acquire the ability to hang points on its own side of the board.

On paper alone, four of the 11 players who are currently accorded the best chances of starting on offense will be operating from new positions this fall. Additional changes are possible during the weeks before the Rutgers opener on September 30 — with running backs Hank Bjorklund, Doug Blake and Walt Snicklenberger all gone and three of the seven linemen graduated, it will require a great deal of experimentation by the coaching staff to find the best combination to represent the Tigers on offense this year.

Position switches so far include moving last year's split end, senior Larry Chollet, to flanker; a reserve tight guard, junior Bill Cronin, to tight end; guard Steve Curtis, from right of center to left; and left tackle Bill Brown, to the other side of the line at guard. A fifth move involving a reserve player has junior Kerry Brown going from flanker to split end.

Six of last year's regulars are back, the losses by graduation including guard Emil Deliere, tackle Paul Ondrasik, end John Solie, plus Bjorklund and Blake. Jake McHard less can start lettermen at eight positions, all save left tackle and the running back slots. The problem, in one simple set of statistics, is BJORKLUND AT HIS BEST: Gone from the Princeton football scene is Hank Bjorklund, who took with him the one-season record for rushing (1081 yards) and the career mark of 2362 — both formerly held by All-American Dick Kazmaier. In this picture, the fine running back is heading for one of the three touchdowns he scored against Dartmouth in his sophomore year as Tigers snapped an eight-game winning streak for the Green with a 35-7 upset.

ing if he does not move up from his present listing as third on the depth chart. An illness last spring makes his full development questionable. Tight end, too, is well staffed, where the versatile Bill Cronin, a 6-3 235-lb. converted guard, and senior Mike Hinciewicz, are the pair most likely to see action. Cronin has unusual agility for his size—he was the goalie on the lacrosse team last spring.

Tackle: Graduation and position switches have cleared out both last year's regulars, with Glenn Yanik, a 230-lb. junior who saw considerable action last fall as a reserve, and Jeff Bart, 225-lb. senior letterman, the probable starters. Bart (who understandably has shortened his name from Bartosiewicz) will be backed up by a 235-lb. junior, Karl Chaudler, while John Meighan, 200-lb. junior, will spell Yanik. Chaudler saw some action on defense last year, but Meighan is almost wholly inexperienced in varsity football.

Guard: Steve Curtis, good enough to win All-Ivy honors as a junior in 1971, and Bill Brown, a 210-lb. senior who has won a letter for the past two seasons at tackle, will give Princeton a thoroughly capable pair of guards—one of the few spots where they should have an edge on most of the opposition. Behind them will be two of their classmates, Brian Leary and Mike Bennett, little used for the past two seasons, while Curtis will also have as a back-up the only sophomore lineman cited as likely to develop quickly into varsity material. He is 6-2, 210-lb. Tony Biagas, who played both ways for last year's freshmen and may fit in quickly this fall.

Center: Senior Paul Yakulis, 200-lb. veteran who won the job as a junior, is the sure starter here, ranking as one of the top blockers on the team. He will be spelled by junior Jim Rafeedie, with senior Dave Alter third on the depth chart and no sophomore listed.

Quarterback: If junior Jim Flynn had been able to guide Princeton to victory over Yale, he would have gone into Tiger fans' memories as one of the top sophomores of recent years. Coming off the bench when senior Rod Plummer was injured at Ithaca in the third game of the season, Flynn sparked a four-game winning streak. But after the team's victories over Colgate, Penn. Brown and Harvard, neither he nor anyone else could cut the mustard against an unimpressive Yale outfit and the season ended with just those four triumphs over mediocre opposition on the plus side.

However, in connecting on 59 of 113 passes, he gained a degree of confidence and experience which will be vital to this year's success. If the Tigers cannot open up the defense with an adequate passing game, their wholly inexperienced ball carriers will never see daylight until they head back to the locker room. Behind Flynn will be another junior, Fred Dalzell, and last year's freshman quarterback, Dave Mistretta, who learned about life the hard way as the Class of '75 was trounced in five of the six games it played.

Running Backs: Two of the smallest ball carriers Princeton has seen in years are billed as the take-overs for Bjorklund and his 1971 replacement, Snickenberg. They are 175-lb. Dave Foelinger, a junior, and 170-lb. Derek Lilly, a senior who has been held back by injuries. Blake, one of the finest blocking backs in Princeton history, will have four or five players battling to step into his shoes. Among them are varsity holdovers Romero Perkins, Mike McGovern, Keith Stock and Howie Bacter, all juniors, and sophomore Bob Harding, a capable tight

Midget Football Deadline

Registration for the Princeton Midget Football League has been scheduled for this Wednesday and Thursday evening, Sept. 6-7, from 6:30 to 8:30 in the Valley Road School Gymnasium.

All boys 10 but not 14 during the calendar year of 1972 and who live or attend school in Princeton are eligible. No late registration will be permitted. Interested parents wishing to assist either as a coach or in an administrative capacity are urged to volunteer their services during registration.

end for last year's freshmen, Harding at 6-3, 210 has greater physical assets than any of the four upperclassmen but has never been a ball carrier in his previous football experience.

Flanker: Both last year's flankers, juniors Bill Skinner and Kerry Brown, are now split ends, while last year's starter at that position, Larry Chollet, is now the ranking flanker. Only three sophomores (see depth chart) are listed behind Chollet, leaving the possibility of further shifts at this position.

Summary: Despite the loss of three regulars, the line has the ability to give a good account of itself. With less known ball carrying ability than any Princeton team in nearly 15 years, the question of occasional success hinges largely on whether Flynn can become the author of a take-charge passing game.

Compounding the degree of difficulty of the task, of course, is the problem Princeton is virtually certain to have in containing the strong offense that Rutgers, Columbia and Dartmouth will generate in the first three games of the season. An attack that will inevitably be groping for daylight is unlikely to find it in profusion if it spends the afternoon trying to play catch-up ball.

TOURNEY TRAIL ENDS

For Princeton Tennis Players. As the summer tennis tournaments drew to a close, last week's Junior Championships at Monmouth College in West Long Branch attracted many Princeton players. Sheri Baumer, seeded number two in the girls' 18-and-under competition, reached the finals where she fell to Kim Jones of Virginia, 2-6, 1-6.

Number two seed, Natalie Usiskin played to the quarterfinals of the 16-and-under category, where she too was beaten by Kim Jones with an identical score.

Entered also in the 16's were Sue Hurley and Heidi Eichenberger, while Debbie Baumer, Sara Augustine and Patty Rose played in the 14-and-under slot.

In the boys' division, Princeton was well represented by Andre Eichenberger, who reached the third round of the 14's by topping Richard Kelly and Kurt Sturn. He then lost to Ron Sica, a strong visitor from Florida.

Andre teamed with Dwight Wilson for a number three seed in the doubles matches. They advanced to the quarterfinals, where they were ousted by number one seed Livett and his partner Johnson, with a score of 6-3, 6-4.

Randy Thomas, Fred Berkelhammer, Keith Usiskin, Alan Aronovic, Jeff Lyle and David Baumer were also among the area participants in the tournament.

FALL TENNIS PLANNED

For Six-Week Session. In response to the tremendous demand — especially from the increasing number of women tennis players in town — the Princeton Community Program has decided to conduct a fall tennis program.

A six-week session is planned, starting the week of September 25 and continuing through Friday, November 3. Classes will be held in clear weather only, with make-ups arranged for rainy days.

Lessons for women will be held on weekday mornings with registration this year directly through the Community Program. Beginners, Advanced Beginners and first-year Intermediates will meet at Community Park under the direction of Karen Bull.

Advanced Intermediates and advanced players are scheduled for the Church Courts at the University under the direction of John Conroy. In addition, evening classes for men are on this fall's agenda to be held at the Princeton High School Courts.

Women interested in evening classes should register directly with the YWCA. These lessons will also be held at the Princeton High School Courts.

An experimental six-week junior program for elementary school students is also being initiated this fall. Class enrollment is strictly limited in size and only fourth to sixth graders who have been previously enrolled in classes may participate.

The primary purpose of the fall program is to provide supervised practice opportunities for younger children who are not yet ready to make dates on their own.

Although there will naturally be an instructional review, "The Tennis Workbooks" will not be used. Emphasis will be on reinforcing skills already learned this past Spring and Summer. Much of the time will be spent in informal game play.

Application blanks will be mailed next week to all former students. Anyone who does not receive one by September 12 should send a note with name, address and phone number to: Princeton Community Tennis Program, 293 Ridgeview Road, Princeton.

No inquiries or registration will be accepted by telephone. Applicants are urged not to call the tennis office or any of the staff. Registration forms may also be obtained in person from the Recreation Office in Township Hall.

CLINIC PLANNED

For Football Fans, Coach Jake McCandless and his 1972 Princeton football squad will conduct a "Princeton Community Clinic" Sunday afternoon, September 24, designed to acquaint Tiger followers with the operations of a modern-day collegiate gridiron program. Beginning at 3 with a slide commentary in Jadwin Gymnasium, the session will include offensive and defensive demonstrations on Preblegryson Field, and will conclude with an informal "camera session."

This "Clinic for Fans," jointly sponsored by the Alumni Council, governing body of the Princeton Alumni Association, and the Department of Athletics, has been projected as a way of giving Princeton alumni and all interested residents of the Princeton community opportunities to gain new insights into football in 1972.

McCandless and his staff will show by means of the slide commentary some of the basic formations and strategy governing collegiate football and will follow this up with out-door demonstrations by members of the Princeton squad. The entire program is expected to run until about 5:30, with players available during the last half hour in pose for pictures and to meet with those attending the clinic.

Among the players on hand will be Captain Mike Kincade, defensive end from Columbus, Ohio. The entire team will demonstrate plays for the fans.

Youthful football enthusiasts under 15 years of age should be accompanied by an adult. Entry should be made through the main doors of Jadwin Gymnasium. Refreshments will be available for purchase during the afternoon.

WEISS IS HONORED

By Hall of Fame, Veteran Princeton track coach Irwin Weiss, a longtime Eastern collegiate football official, has been selected for special honors by the United Savings Helms Athletic Foundation Hall of Fame.

Weiss, who served as a

Hockey Coach Named

John D. Sender of Salisbury, Conn., has been appointed Freshman Ice Hockey coach at Princeton this varsity.

Sender, a graduate of the University of Vermont, where he was an outstanding hockey player from 1965 to 1968, was an assistant coach at Vermont last winter. He is a Marine Corps veteran of Viet Nam, has served in that theater for eight months as a platoon leader.

Sender attended the Kent School, he played soccer and hockey and then moved on to Vermont, where he explained the skaters his senior year and was also voted Most Valuable Player by his teammates. While at Princeton, Sender will also assist in the soccer program.

Irwin Weiss

ant track coach at Princeton University and before that as head track coach at Princeton High School, was a leading college football referee for many years. He was also an Olympic games track official and served as an official in the Pan American games.

He is presently in Munich attending the 20th Olympiad. He has served as the director of the Scholarship Selection Committee for the Delaware Valley Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame for many years. Weiss could not actually be voted into the Hall of Fame, since its membership is limited to those who make contributions in major competition.

3 SPOTS SETTLED

In Softball Playoffs, Three spots have been settled in the divisional finals of the Eastern Softball League's post-season playoffs, with RCA and Forrester still fighting for the fourth place.

McGray Hill and Cities Service are meeting in one final, and EFS will meet the winner of the RCA Forrester battle in the other. The two teams who emerge victorious from this round will play for the league championship.

McGray Hill disposed of Shearer Tree in two straight games, 18-14 and 27-7. Cities Service, after dropping the first contest to PMC, 17-7, won the next two decisively, 7-1, and 17-2.

EFS had little trouble with RCA, winning 12-9 and 5-0. RCA won the first game of the series, 15-14, scoring four runs in the final inning to win it, but then lost the second game, 11-10, when Forrester pushed across the winning marker in the final inning.

ART CLASSES LISTED

At Studio on Canal, The program for the Fall Arts Workshop at the Studio on the Canal has been announced by Rex Goodrich, director.

"We are gratified by the eagerness of the instructors who will be working with us," Mr. Goodrich said. "The Studio's policy has always been to select instructors noted not only for their exceptional abilities as artists but for their ability to communicate to their students." Workshops at the studio are limited to 10 students to assure maximum personal attention.

The instructors include: Hughie Lee Smith, who has won many awards from The National Academy of Design, the Detroit Institute of Art, the Cleveland Museum and others. His work is found in numerous public and private collections. In addition to teaching at the Studio this fall, he is also teaching at the Arts Students League in New York and offering a lecture course at Trenton State College.

Monday evenings, Mr. Smith will teach Figure Painting in oils. The instruction will be personalized for students who have had some experience working from the figure.

Alexander Lee, who now lives in Trenton, will give creative painting in water color and oils on Tuesday morning. Classes will be held outdoors, weather permitting, and figure work from the model will be done. Mr. Lee's awards include prizes from the Baltimore Watercolor Club, Salamagundi Club, Woodmere Art Gallery and New Jersey Watercolor Society.

Richard Gerster, a graduate of the Tyler School of Fine Arts with a BFA majoring in sculpture, will instruct a sculpture workshop on Tuesday afternoons. Figure work will be featured. Winner of numerous prizes, he has shown his work at the Yardley Art Association, Phillips Mill, the State Museum and recently at the Confederate Gallery in Kingston. Mr. Gerster began his first class at the Studio during the summer term.

Wallace K. Conway, curator of exhibits at the State Museum, will teach Life drawing on Wednesday nights. A distinguished painter in his own right, Mr. Conway is a member of the Washington, D. C. Art Association and the Leitch Art Center and frequently judges art shows. He has also taught at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D. C., and began his teaching at the Studio last January. Painting will also be included for the advanced student in the Wednesday night session.

Robert Sakson is a regular exhibitor in the American Watercolor Society shows. In 1970 he received the Helen Gopen Ohler Award for transparent traditional watercolor. Last year, he won first prize in the Garden State Watercolor Society show. He also exhibited in the National Watercolor Exhibition in Wichita, Kansas, and "Watercolor West" in Logan, Utah. Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Sakson will instruct Transparent Watercolor, working outdoors, weather permitting. The class will convene on Thursday evenings and work from the figure, drawing and painting in pastel.

A children's creative painting will be held on Saturday mornings. Ages 10 and over will be included and the session will meet outdoors. The instructor for the workshop will be announced.

Workshops in Creative Ceramics and Wheel Throwing will be offered for the fall term, as well as Wheel Throwing for those who have had previous experience on the wheel.

A brochure detailing the Arts Workshop is available by writing or phoning the Studio, 152-9053.

HOMEOWNERS PROTECTED

By New Insurance Ratings, New Jersey Insurance Commissioner Richard C. McDonough has approved new rule filings submitted by two major insurance rating organizations that would limit a company's right to cancel either a homeowner's insurance policy or a fire insurance policy on an owner-occupied dwelling.

The Commissioner said the new rule is significant to the insurance buying public because it would remove "some of the irritants" where policies are sometimes cancelled before their normal expiration date.

Occasionally, policies are cancelled by a company shortly after a loss occurs, or when the completion of the underwriting checkup shows that the risk has characteristics that make it undesirable, such as a home that is left uncared for extended periods. Under the new rule a company will have to make its decision during the first 60 days, whether it wants to provide coverage. After the initial 60 days, the company cannot cancel the policy except for stated reasons such as nonpayment of premium, fraud or material misrepresentation, a substantial change in the risk's characteristics or willful or negligent act or omission by the insured that increases the hazard substantially.

The rating organizations that requested the change are the Insurance Services Office and Transportation Rating Bureau. Both organizations combined represent companies writing about 75% of the homeowner's and dwelling fire insurance business in New Jersey.

The new rule is now in effect for the homeowner's insurance policy. The non-cancellation rule for dwelling policies will be effective within 30 days.

The homeowner policy is the more comprehensive of the two. It covers protection against loss from fire, windstorm and related perils, as well as burglary or theft and personal liability coverage. The dwelling policy provides coverage only against losses caused by fire and related hazards such as windstorm and lightning.

With respect to non-renewals as opposed to cancellations, if a company, under the new rule, decides not to renew a policy at the end of the policy term, it must give notice to the insured at least 30 days in advance.

WEIDEL JOINS SERVICE
To Aid Relocating Executives. Richard A. Weidel, Broker of the real estate firm of Karl Weidel, Inc. has announced that through the firm's membership in All Points Relocation Service, it is now able to provide most transferring executives, funds to purchase a home in their destination city, thus speeding up the moving process.

This means instead of waiting for his present home to be sold, a person can turn his present property over to All Points and use the equity advancement as downpayment on a new home, providing his employer endorses the plan. The program provides for professional appraisals, payment of taxes, insurance, repairs, maintenance, utilities and lawn care.

Under the program, home-sellers who accept the All Points offer to handle their homes are assured of having money with which to purchase in their new community. Offers will be based on independent appraisals of home values, less the costs of trading and a nominal fee usually paid by the employer, according to Weidel.

Other relocation services offered by All Points include listing and sale of the customers' present home and immediate referral of his housing needs to a member broker in the community to which he is moving.

Details regarding price range, style of house, area desired and other requirements of a new home are included in the referral. According to Mr. Weidel, this information helps the destination broker to select properties that fulfill a transferees' needs.

I-95 BATTLE CONTINUES

Further Hearings Scheduled. The Hopewell Township Citizens Committee has won the right to another hearing which may continue to stall construction of Interstate I-95 through the municipality.

A preliminary injunction is being sought which would bar work on the highway until an environmental impact study can be completed. Federal District Court Judge Clarkson S. Fisher has set next Thursday, September 14, as the hearing date in his Trenton courtroom.

He has instructed federal highway officials to show at that time why he should not grant the injunction. The 3.4 mile four-lane highway is currently planned to run from Scotch Road to Federal City Road near the Lawrence-Hopewell Township border.

The New Jersey State Highway Department contends that no environmental impact study is necessary because the highway would follow the path of the old Route 129, which was studied when it was built.

Completion of I-95, planned by the U.S. Government to run from Maine to Florida, was originally scheduled in Hopewell Township by 1968. Residents opposed to the proposed route have already spent an estimated $500,000 in the fight against it.

SUMMONS IS REWARD

For Attempted Bribe. An attempted bribe of a Township patrolman ended last week in three summons being issued to a Trenton driver.

Elzee Daniels, a construction worker, was pulled over on Stockton Street near Edgemoor Road Wednesday evening by Ptl. Mario Musso for driving 20 miles under the 45 mile limit. According to Ptl. Musso, Daniels offered him $25 to let him go and suggested they discuss it in his patrol car.

"Wait a minute", Ptl. Musso replied. He went back to the patrol car where Sgt. Robert Hancock, the officer in charge, was sitting. told him the circumstances and said that he would accept the bribe.

When Ptl. Musso returned, he charged Daniels with attempted bribery, drunken driving and driving while on a revoked list. Daniels was later released in $500 bail to await a hearing in Township court.

What's a non-religious Jewish school?

It's not a "Hebrew School", a "Talmud Torah" or even connected with a Synagogue.

It's a cooperative Sunday school that starts your child to a cultural education and a Jewish identity. It teaches your children Jewish history, literature, music, Hebrew or Yiddish. And what's more important, it emphasizes what it means to be a Jew in today's world.

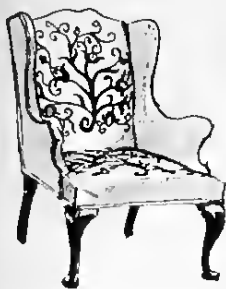

SCHOOL STARTS SUNDAY, SEPT. 17TH, 1972.

Registration: Sunday, Sept. 3rd and 10th, 10 AM - 1 PM, Thursday, Sept. 7th, 7 - 9 PM.

WHITE FLOUR can hardly be classified as food by the time it reaches you. First the soil is treated with an herbicide and pesticide, and the seeds are treated with mercury. After the harvest the grain is sprayed with an insecticide and fumigating gas for storage. The grain and germ are removed (they contain most of the vitamins and proteins), and the ore-mains milled at high temperature that destroy the rest of the nutrients. In milling, the flour is treated with oxidizing agents like bromate, persulfate, iodate and nitrogen trichloride, which affect protease activity and gluten properties. Bleaching agents such as oxides of nitrogen, chlorine and benzoyl peroxide convert the yellow carotinoid pigment to colorless compounds which the consumer prefers in his white bread. It can then sit on the shelves indefinitely, a lifeless starch that won't keep, rats or bugs alive. The alternative—organically grown stone ground whole grain flours: Whole Wheat, Rye, Soybean, Buckwheat, Rice, Graham and Barley flours are waiting for you at The Whole Earth Center, 360 Nassau St., Princeton.

"HIGHFIELDS FARM"
Goat Hill Road
West Amwell Township
(George Washington never slept here . . . it was booked solid by the time he arrived!)

Slept in the historic tradition of the Delaware Valley, dating back to years before the American Revolution, here is a choice spot high on a famous hill with a sometimes view of the river, and completely isolated from its neighbors. Within a short distance of Lambertville and Bucks County, twenty-four minutes to Princeton, and commutable to New York via Trenton or Hopewell, this property boasts everything near and dear to lovers of authentic STONE colonials:

Slate and tin roofs, wide window wells, walk-in fireplaces, brick kitchen floor, cozy rooms, quiet nooks, random pine floors, small window panes, yet with all modern conveniences.

Four bedrooms, three baths, two parlors, library, conversational kitchen, and utility room complete the main house. A frame barn in very good repair features a heated studio room, carriage shed, and a four-room apartment ideal for guests or income!

Just the right amount of land . . . thirty-eight acres enhance the property with meadows, pastures, brook and woods. 1 1/2 one-acre minimum residential with approximately 1300 feet of frontage. Taxes are just a wee bit above two thousand dollars!

Please call for an appointment and walk back into history with us to a time when horses were horses and people enjoyed tranquility. $175,000

The Mystique of MUSK by A. Ashley

Discovered by the ancient Chinese and long a component of fine perfume, Musk Oil is now presented in its purest form by A. Ashley.

Actually, Musk Oil is a totally new experience in perfume. When you apply it, don't be surprised that you won't be able to detect it on yourself. Only the enthusiastic reactions of others will tell you that you're wearing this super-stimulating perfume.

The way A. Ashley's Musk Oil acts is quite remarkable. Unlike classical perfume which becomes weaker with time, Musk Oil becomes more potent as you wear it. Because it has the unusual quality of persistent diffusion and amplification, its sphere of influence becomes greater as it blends with body oils. Its power is such that any article near it takes on its fragrance. Historians tell us that the Empress Josephine adored musk and that her boudoir was so saturated that even sixty years after her death her room was still redolent of it.

Musk Oil should be used cautiously. A. Ashley suggests that a single drop be applied to pulse points: on throat, wrists, in the bend of elbows and knees...and you'll walk in fragrance every minute of the day. by A. Ashley, $3.50. Available at
